

One Hour Parking On Main in Effect

On March 4, the Common Council of the City of Heppner enacted an ordinance providing for one hour parking on Main street from May street to Center street and one hundred feet east from Main street on May street, in the City of Heppner, and said ordinance is to become effective with the placing of the parking signs. These signs will be in position within the next few days.

It is not the intention of this ordinance to limit any person's right to park, but rather to extend that privilege to all. It is hoped that this ordinance will make more available to all the limited parking space we have. The normal growth of the City makes limited parking necessary.

It is not intended that this ordinance will be enforced unreasonably or too strictly, but it will be enforced. The person who has been in the habit of parking his car in the principal part of the city and going away and leaving it for all persons who remain in their cars day, will have to change his habits, while parked will not be molested, unless it be absolutely necessary, and double parking is to be discouraged altogether.

There is a penalty which will be levied against persons too long over-parked in one place, but the City does not expect to pay off the national debt with fines from this source. In fact, if everyone will co-operate with the spirit of this ordinance, very few fines will be collected.

J. O. Turner,
Mayor

Sgt. Wade Bothwell, in service for 30 months with 18 months overseas arrived in Heppner Monday morning. He has seen service in India, Burma, Siam, and Singapore. The trip home was Wade's first trip by ship and although he missed a couple of meals was a good traveler most of the 26 days en route from Calcutta. He has his discharge papers and is glad to be home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Bothwell.

While driving from the Claude White ranch to Lexington Monday morning, Mrs. Delbert Vincent had the misfortune to upset her car. Her children, Richard and Dorothy were with her but fortunately no one was hurt.

Mrs. Anna Bayless has returned to the home of her son Howard Swick at Monument. Mrs. Bayless expects to be away at least a month.

Forest and Range

LeRoy Barrey, who is communication technician for the Forest service on all of the Blue Mountains national forests, is on the Heppner ranger district this week. He is testing the performance of the present forest service telephone lines and is making necessary changes. While on the district he is going to study the possibility of installing a complete radio system, making complete use of the ultra high frequency (more commonly known as the Walkie Talkie.) Using this type of radio it makes it possible for a smoke chaser to talk directly to headquarters through a small portable set. On this district it would be necessary to install a relay on Madison Butte, since the air waves from the Ultra high frequency sets will not bend. The relay makes it possible to talk across a mountain with the small portable sets.

There have been a few inquiries recently for the building of summer homes and hunting lodges in the Ditch creek area. The forest service policy is to group these summer homes in small colonies with each one having a lot, rather than permitting the building of cottages and lodges promiscuously over the forest. In this area the number of suitable sites having an available water supply is limited and in order to accommodate the future demand it is felt necessary to colonize the building of homes. When there is sufficient demand for summer homes in small colonies with survey possible sites. Anyone wishing to build a home in the Ditch creek area should call at the ranger's office and make application.

Cleve Van Schoiack has purchased 1200 yearling ewes from Oran Wright and will graze them on the Swale creek allotment this summer.

Post and pole permits have been issued to Edgar Albert, Kinzua Pine Mills, Washburns and John Hanna.

A dead wood permit was issued to Ed McDaniel.

Glenn Parsons returned last week from a three day school at Hemlock ranger station on the Columbia national forest. The school was a review of fire fighting technique on large fires and the training of personnel for fire overhead on large fires. Foresters attending the school will be sent to large fires in the northwest this summer and some years they are sent to fires in southern California.
