We All Have Our Troubles

The series of strikes that have beset the country since the cessation of hostilities have in one has improved crop conditions in this section and way or another affected every line of business. removed some of the gloom that has beclouded We grew accustomed to shortags necessitated by war demands and took our handicaps cheerfully, which fell in late May this puts a reasonable comforted by the thought that when the war is over we will be able to get the things we need. But it appears that the end of the war was but the ty. Some farmers say their prospects are good beginning of domestic troubles which to date others take the opposite view. It is true that have not been sufficiently ironed out to permit stands are not up to the level of the past few resumption of a normal trend.

In all this turmoil the printing and publishing industry has carried on philosophically. Curtailments have been instituted to keep the machinery in motion. Newspapers have narrowed margins, limited advertising space, reduced the number of pages, omitted special features in an effort to keep going. During the war period al lotments took care of some of the trouble, particularly in the case of the weekly newspapers, lew of which approached the limit of their quotas. In recent months this situation has changed and the word coming from the best informed sources is to took well to your newsprint supply. rapid rate these days and gradually the picture As stated elsewhere in this issue, the Gazette Times is trying to conserve on newsprint. The Younger people are buying out the old esta matter of makeup ad readability. Some of our readers have expressed a preferance for the tabloid size, while advertisers have shown a liking when M. D. Clark decided to retire and sold h for the larger page. Under normal conditions it business to Harry Van Horn and Roy Quacke will seldom be necessary to expand to the ex- bush. Later on Mr. and Mrs. Hanson Hughes di tnt of two or four extra pages because of the posed of their stock and retired. Road Improvement Needed

This newspaper is not fully informed on the highway improvement situation in Morrow county but it is recalled that when the highway commission last visited here the matter of completing the Heppner-Spray road at least as far as Hardman was discussed and that there was some assurance given that this would be done when road work could be resumed on a general scale. Mention was made that the improvement should extend as far as the Kinzua Pine Mills company s Camp Five road in order to preserve the grade already established.

Since the commission's visit three years ago timber activity in that area has increased and there is a heavy volume of traffic between the Wall creek timber region and Heppner. The narrow, crooked route from Ruggs to Hardman a problem for trucks meeting at some points, especially if the one coming this way is loaded with logs, and people in passenger cars feel a bit uneasy when meeting one of the big

At present a construction crew is engaged in completing the Heppner-Condon highway. It is recognized that this is a link in a route that will lead either to central Oregon or the Columbia river through Gilliam and Sherman counties. This will be an excellent road and place Heppner on a through route.

Our next concern, and in some respects our first concern, is completion of the road over the mountains to the south. With the opening of a second camp by the Kinzua interests and the cutting of an extensive belt of timber by the Heponer Lumber company in the Wall creek area, there will be still heavier traffic out of here. Added to this development is the Monument area, for which district Heppner is a natural outlet, and attention should be given to the matter of obtaining a highway directly into that district. Reestablishment of trade with the northern Grant territory will not hurt Heppner. It is possible to combine several interests in obtaining a route down Little Wall creek to the main creek and thence into Monument by water grade. This should be looked into and followed up. Talking and dreaming about it will not get results. No doubt the lumber companies and the Forest Service would be interested in such a route, and surely Heppner, if our business people are lookmg beyond the horizon of the surrounding hills should be interested in extending its trade

In the years to come there will be much rerouting of highways to better serve districts now more or less remote from such traffic arteries. It has been evident almost since construction of the Heppner-Spray route that the road was more of an accommodation to certain individuals than to the public at large and while it is nice to have it, so far as this community is concerned it has not been a developer of trade with the interior country. If this condition is to be remedied we will have to formulate a program and follow it up. We will have to collect and prepare factual data to present to the commission and stir up interest in the territory to be served. It will be work but will be worth the effort.

A Munificent Rain

Abundant rainfall since the first of the month farmer countenances. Added to the 1.70 inches amount of insurance on a fair crop in 1946.

Varying reports come in from over the coun years, yet it is difficult to accept the view tha crop failures are on the calendar for this year Some of the marginal territory will be poor. In some of the better districts weeds will cut dow the yield and the over-all picture is that stalk are short and the heads small. The present rain spell and reasonably warm weather followin should improve the filling out process and rais the general average.

Town Growing Younger

Changes are taking place in Heppner at is becoming one of youth along Main stree larger pages may not be as convenient in the lished places and setting about to make their p sition secure in the community.

It might be said that the ball started rolli and Mrs. John Saager. In recent months the pi Case and Gus Nikander taking over manageme of the Case Furniture company; Reynolds Hubener succeeding Edward Chinn in the E horn restaurant, and numerous other changes.

Now comes the sale of the Noble Harness Saddle shop, one of the oldest established bu nesses remaining in one family since its beg ning. E. G. Noble has bowed to the inevitable a from here on the husiness will be operated Thomas Lloyd with the assistance of his broth

There remains one firm name which has b in the hands of two families from its establi ment, Gilliam & Bisbee. Next to that it looks l the Gazette Times falls in line for long succe ion of family name, excluding, of course, Thomson Bros. store previously mentioned.

There is an opportunity for these youn business people to cash in on the experience their predecessors. Perhaps they can see wh their elders were a bit too conservative, or the other hand, not conservative enough, and steer their ship on a safer course. At least, I street has grown younger in recent years and the young fellows have not been satisfied w the way things have been going they are position to do the steering from here on.

What Can Be Done About It?

One of the problems facing the small t these days is to provide entertainment for people. This is more especially true in regard returned service men who had no special empl ment or perhaps a business of their own bef entering the service. The remark is heard for time to time that "I don't want to return to Heppner. There's nohing for a young fellow to do in town can do to provide excitement such as some average small town, such as Heppner, with a picthe midst of some of the greatest excitement the world has ever known.

Perhaps there is another side to this question. Just as there are many youths who got "hopped up" on excitement during the war, there also are as many others, and doubtless more, who sought only to get the war over and return to their homes and resume a normal life. Thes boys for the most most part have returned home and gone to work. Many of them have married, others have returned to school. They have not been content to accent the allowance made by their government for a period of idleness. Work is the surest way of forgetting the horrors of war and when properly employed there is less time to think about the

This does not excuse the home town from trying to provide entertainment, and Heppner does reasonably well, and it will take time to build up a program of this nature. In the meantime, some of the war "hop" will have worn off and the regular commercial entertainment channels will take care of most of that type of business.

This poses a problem for communities such as ours, for there appears to be little the small of the returned veterans think they crave. The ture show every night in the week, a dance either in town or a nearby community practically every Saturday night, the lodges, pastimes and other centers-all these features which once had appeal no longer suffice for the youth who has been ip
