Sounds Reasonable

Murray Wade, whose Capital Parade column is used somewhat irregularly by the Gazette Times, comes forth with an observation relative to salaries of state officials which sounds reasenable. He heads his comment, "Escalator Salaries," and has the following to say:

"If living costs are to be used as a yardstick for raising salaries, why should they not be used as a yardstick in lowering them when living costs go down?

"Salaries are invariably raised during prosperous times but when the going gets gummy for the rest of us the salaries of state officials remain the same. They are never reduced. The ways and means committee has taken up this idea and plans to introduce a bill that will put these salaries on an elastic basis."

Why not include all tax-paid salaries where a reduction would not work injury on those involved? The point is, of course, to prove that no injury will be worked on the officials.

A Dangerous Crossing

With erection of a building on the corner of May and Court streets a new traffic problem has been created. Heretofore, car drivers and pedestrians alike had sufficient range of vision along north Court street to avoid collisions or getting run over, as the case might be. Now that range is narrowed down and it would be reassuring, to pedestrians at least, if some provision were made for slowing down traffic on that cor-

Without appearing critical, it seems the city has been remiss in establishing crossings and a walk to and from the courthouse. Why has there not been a walk along the north side of the street from Chase street to the Willow creek offers inducement for expansion of our populabridge, and a continuation of the walk from the bridge to Court street? Every consideration has been given the man with a car but none to the lowly pedestrian.

For safety's sake, as well as a modicum of comfort and assurance to the pedestrian, something should be done about this matter. The courthouse is one of the principal business houses of the town. Not all of the visitors to the well and relaying most of the mains in the city seat of the county government drive the short distance from the business center and it is for these people, their comfort and safety, that this plea is made.

We would suggest that the city join with Mr. Schwarz in establishing a broad walk in front of the new store; that a walk be built from the east approach of the bridge to join the store marked across Court street to the courthouse we can't afford to do that.

walk. A similar lane should be established from the opposite corner of May and Court and suitable traffic warnings placed for the benefit of motorists. Then, if the county officials will adopt parallel parking in front of the courthouse the * * * * * * * way will be cleared for unimpeded traffic along that portion of Court street.

Had A Lot of Trees

Those first settlers, the Pilgrims, could have record of 69 days established in had no conception of what lay beyond the rock- 1945-the necessity of an annual ribbed New England shores when they first set states, including Massachusetts, foot upon the New World. They could not have New Jersey and New York, have known even in their lifetime what lay beyond the New England hills and only recently has an at such a suggestion, those who estimate been made.

How much wood was growing in America's primeval forests ten years after the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock?

The National Lumber Manufacturers Associa tion thinks it has the answer. Studies indicate, it says, that there were 8,125 billion board feet of trees standing in 1630 in this country. In the 300 years since then, 9,500 billion board feet have grown to supply America's needs.

Only a small part of our forestry resources (3.259 billion feet) were used for lumber, the matters have aroused enough association says. The greatest consumption was by natural causes such as insects, fire and disease. Clearings and cutting for fuel accounted

A Step in the Right Direction

The work program adopted by the city council Monday evening must be done before a move can be made towards putting in a sewer system, which is a sizeable project in itself. These improvements are the price we must pay if we are to progress. Without them we will not even from the walk and that a pedestrian lane be remain stationary. We will go backwards-and

SPECIAL ELECTION

As the 44th legislative session of Oregon rolls toward a record length-it is now generally conceded it will at least equal the session is emphasized. Several annual legislative sessions, There are many who will how thoughtlessly dislike policemen and legislatures. Two years be tween sessions is too long, too ong a lapse for the members nd too long a lapse for public interest. The largest businesses in the state and the nation have neetings of their boards of directors from one to four times a nonth. Imagine them having a meeting only once in two years! There is the plan of having all otes recorded and the abolish nent of the standing vote and the "aye and naye" vote. Those interest at this session that they may be initiated and put to a vote of the people at a special election this summer, along with the referendum on the ov erriding of Governor Earl Snell's veto of the power companies bill, he sales tax measure and pro bably several others.

Bills passed by both the Senite and the House and signed the past week by Governor Snell were of a minor nature, as compared with legislation now in committees, and include: HB 12, prohibiting transfer of comnercial fishing licenses; HB 273 ransfers an unexpended bal ance from revolving fund of pubic welfare commission to the public assistance fund; HB 72. ncreases salaries of Curry couny officials; HB 97, allows all anks in state to make time de posits in banks in other cities; HB 153, changes annual expiraion date of butter makers and cheese makers from July 1 to lanuary 1; HB 197, appropriates $10,000 derived from insurance premium tax to expenses of enoreing motor vehicle responsi bility act; SB 58, provides that equire into conduct of banks and trust companies: SB 60, auhorizes superintendent of banks o appoint assistants to bank trust companies of Multnomah the ounty to establish branches.

The legislature is considering he acceptance of another proffered gift from the federal government, the army hospital at amp Adair which cost between ive and six million dollars. A gislative investigating com nittee who recently visited the buildings near Medford told the House and Senate, "It would be unthinkable for the state to fail to take advantage of this opportunity. It is one of the finestif not the finest-army camp of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lucas of hospital in the country."

COMEDY RELIEF

Two of Oregon's officials have more worries than all the rest Mrs. Lucas went to Boardman put together. Dr. John Evans, to visit a few days at the home superintendent of the Oregon of their son-in-law and daugh-state hospital for forty years and ter, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Fotner. George Alexander, superintendent of the Oregon penitentiary for eight years are unusual executives doing wonders under unavoidable conditions. The buildings at both institutions are old firetraps with outmoded facilities. Efficient help of any kind is a problem. They live under a constant strain—the probability of a major disaster. Says Dr. Evans, "George wonders when I might have to turn the key on him over here and I speculate on when I might crack and he would tun the key on me at his institution."
