French Reviews The Legislature

By GILES FRENCH Rep. 22nd District

The Legislature is still beset with the problem of how to raise money for the next biennium. The state's method of handling its finances is one that is difficult to understand and explanation of it requires a bit of time. What is needed is general fund money, which means new taxes for regular levies and a property tax which may or may not be offset by income and excise taxes. It may be possible to effect a transfer that will settle the problem.

So far it has not been solved and few new taxes have been levied. The lowered income tax exemption, the increased excise tax bills have been laid on the table in the house taxation committee but they may have to be used. The ten percent tax on liquor would raise around $4,000,000 which would help, but that bill is also on the table. The business tax has also been by-passed and it may be needed as well.

It now appears that the taxation worries of the legislature will be the thing that prolongs the session. Yet there are other worries. For instance the welfare situation is not good and the job of getting that budget down to the limits of the state's finances is not getting along very well. The people who get their money from the state in unemployment compensation, workmen's compensation, welfare or from the federal government in social security money, budgeting very hard. They constantly get more money and it is constantly harder to re-load and many other public activities are curtailed in costs because of these.

School costs have to battle with them for money but this situation was relieved by the passage of the basic school bill. The effect will be temporary for the teachers are going to get all the extra money and leave nothing for school boards to build new buildings or provide better education.

The school bill for distribution of the $15,750,000 is now in the senate committee on education together with the congressional district bill. Another house bill's provisions are also receiving attention.

What may come out of it cannot be foretold, but it is likely that a less drastic method of equalization will be found. Certainly the senate committee is not so set on millage equalization as was the house committee. The needs of educational equalization are now being considered for the first time in the session.

The legislature has passed SB99, which gave the Idaho Power company a chance to build a plant on the Snake river, but the house committee on utilities still has two other bills, one to require a certificate of necessity any convenience before any new electrical installation could be made, and another to provide for dissolution of PUD districts.

The throughway and zoning bills have passed the senate and will likely pass the house. Some parts of the state need them but there is much opposition to them from some sources. To the residents of the 22nd district they are pretty much an academic subject but folks around Portland, Eugene, Salem and Klamath Falls find them most important.

The big truck bill went sailing through the senate with very little debate and not a single NO until the last name on the roll. Now comes the bill that will provide a new tax on trucks, and while it passed the house easily enough it may be amended upward in the senate. The scale of payment stops at 48,000 pounds although 72,000 pounds are now permitted. Fur may fly over this before the end.

There has been little activity along the liquor front and the expected bills to reduce the authority of the commission are not being pushed. A recent supreme court decision which said clearly and positively that the selling of liquor was a privilege and not a right may have helped to stop this kind of legislation.

Mrs. A. D. McMurdo drove to Portland Saturday to spend the week end. Returning home Tuesday she was accompanied by her granddaughter, Peggy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted McMurdo.

Clifford Aalberg of the Heppner bakery is spending the week in Portland. He went to the city Saturday.

Frank Chappo, employee at the First National bank the past two years has transferred to another branch of the First National in Portland. Report has it that he will be married shortly. His place here has been taken by Don Bennett, World War II veteran and son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bennett.

Les Knowles and son Don, in town Tuesday from Camp Five, reported seven inches of snow in their vicinity last week.

Mrs. Minnie Card, state organizer for the Degree of Honor, spent the past week in Heppner on lodge business.
