Jim Valentine, farmer and registered Shorthorn breeder in Sand Hollow, has just completed building a cattle stock to be used in trimming the hoofs of his registered cattle. Jim will keep his registered bulls and females trimmed up in "show shape" and several Morrow county 4-H club members are planning to use the stock for trimming up their club animals before exhibit.

A hearing for organization of a soil conservation district in north Morrow county to include Boardman and Irigon was held at Boardman last Monday afternoon, March 17. Forty-two farmers were present at the hearing to discuss the needs for such a district and to express their opinion on the advantage or disadvantages of such a district. Gerald Newcombe, extension soil conservationist from Oregon State college; Howard Cushman, executive secretary, Corvallis, and Charles Nish, Mikkaloo, both members of the state soil conservation committee; Ray Kent, Pendleton, and George Gosline, Corvallis, soil conservation service, were present. Mr. Newcombe conducted the hearing.

If the hearing is acted upon favorably by the state soil conservation committee, a referendum will be held in early April.

A meeting of the Morrow-Gilliam cricket control area association was held at Arlington last Wednesday afternoon. Twenty-eight persons were present with Bert Johnson, L. D. Neill, A. Hug, Russell Miller, Herb Hynd, John Krebs, Ralph Skoubo, Robert Wilson, Neils Kristensen, M. D. Ashley, F. S. Magill, S. L. Magill, Adolf Skoubo and N. C. Anderson representing Morrow county.

Plans for the year's cricket control program were reviewed and final arrangements were made for the cooperative program being effectively carried through. USDA's bureau of entomology, Morrow and Gilliam county courts and farmers in the infested areas will cooperate in the program.

George L. Penrose, agricultural agent, with the Union Pacific Railroad company, spent Wednesday, March 19, with the county agent, Mr. Penrose was checking on agricultural accomplishments and was particularly interested in a marketing program or association in the Boardman-Irigon section as a means of more orderly marketing of the meions grown there.

Approximately 230 chairs were upholstered and 320 slip covers made in Oregon between December 1945-46 as the result of upholstery workshops. This is a jump from 78 upholstered chairs and 270 slipcovers of the preceding year. The state house furnishing report made by Mrs. Carter estimated homemakers in these workshops saved $2865.50 in a year by upholstering their own chairs and saved $1623 by making their own slip covers.

Upholstery workshops are the latest type of workshop being used by home demonstration agents and are an outgrowth of the war with its scarcity of furniture. A preliminary meeting is conducted by the home furnishings specialist from OSC about three weeks in advance of the workshop. At this time the women bring their old furniture to repair, and then discuss how to select material for the pieces.

A workshop is limited to 16 women working on eight chairs. Usually two women from each extension unit attend, bringing with them one piece of furniture to learn the principles which they take back to their communities. There they will act as program leaders to pass on their

IRRIGON NEWS

By Mrs. J. A. Shoun

Mr. and Mrs. J. Emmett McCoy celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday. The golden wedding should have been March 13, but Sunday was more convenient for the relatives and friends to participate.

The children, Mrs. Carrie Berry of Portland, Miss Snowy McCoy of Hermiston, Russell McCoy of Seattle, and Myrtle Markham of Irigon, were all present.

The children brought Mr. and Mrs. McCoy a radio. They received so many more presents, also. The grandchildren brought them a large white cake trimmed with gold.

The daughters had open house Sunday afternoon with over 150 relatives and friends calling on them. They were all treated to sandwiches, cake and coffee. The Emmett McCoy's were next to the oldest settlers here. The George Rands were first.

Mrs. McCoy's mother, Mrs. Josephine Graybeal, celebrated her 88th birthday on March 4 with 25 relatives as guests. She is making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Charles McFall, and celebrated her birthday there.

The firemen sponsored a St. Patrick's dance Saturday night, with the ladies serving hamburgers. They cleared $89.35 for the fire fund.
