Two Morrow Men Make 2,4-D Tests

Demonstrational applications of 2,4-D dust put out by Frank Anderson, Eightmile, and O. W. Cutsforth, Lexington, are showing excellent results in controlling annual weeds in wheat. The selective dusting was done in early March while weeds were in the small rosette stage while most susceptible to the 2,4-D.

Tarweed, mustards, both tansy and Jimhill, prickly lettuce and alfalfa are affected by the dust, with alfalfa, prickly lettuce and Jimhill mustards being killed almost 100 percent.

Applications were made by power dusters, on quiet days. The dustings were made after a rain while moisture was still on the weeds in order that the dust would cling to the weeds to be killed.

Due to the very limited quantity of dust available, all demonstrations planned could not be carried out. However, results of the dust appear favorable and it should have a place in annual weed control in years that they are a problem in wheat.

GRANGERS SHAPE THE PATTERN of OREGON'S DEVELOPMENT

OREGON FARMERS make a sizeable contribution every year to the nation's breadbasket. And the "staff of life" is important to Grangers.

The contribution of wheat farmers to Oregon business is estimated by the U.S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics at $29,453,000 for the last reported year—farm wealth that filters into trade channels to build the economically sound Oregon always advocated by the Grange.

Grange strength in Oregon surges from 30,000 farmers who look ahead and think ahead. Their efforts to improve living conditions of the state's farmers also shape the pattern of Oregon's development—for what helps the farmers helps every Oregonian.

Grange achievements that have made Oregon a better state in which to live:

- ✓ R. F. D. Routes
- ✓ Direct Election of Senators
- ✓ Cooperative Marketing
- ✓ Better Roads
- ✓ Improvements in Education
- ✓ Graduated Income Tax
- ✓ Improved Marketing
- ✓ Low-Cost Light and Power
