Death Takes Ture E. Peterson Early Sunday Morning

Sudden Demise Is Shock to Family And Many Friends

Death came to Ture E. Peterson at the family home shortly before 6 o'clock Sunday morning, apparently due to a blood clot which terminated his life suddenly. He had been annoyed by asthma and his physician had been with him the evening before to help make him comfortable for the night. Mrs. Peterson learned what had happened when she went to her husband's room to see if she could help him.

Mr. Peterson had been in Walla Walla for a few days earlier, where he took reaction tests for asthma. He was up town each day until Saturday, attending to matters of business and visiting with his friends along the street. No alarm was felt about his condition but the physician was called in times past to help make him comfortable.

Funeral services were held at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday at Valby Lutheran church in Gooseberry, with the Rev. Carl W. Sodergren of Portland officiating. Hymns were sung by Mrs. Walter Roberts and Mrs. Charles O'Connor, accompanied by Mrs. Cleo Drake, all of Ione. Active pallbearers were Walter Roberts, David Rietmann, Victor Rietmann, Cornett Green, Oscar Peterson and Earl Blake. Honorary pallbearers, J. J. Nys, Frank S. Parker and Joe Hughes.

Interment was in the family plot in the Valby church cemetery.

The church was completely filled with sorrowing friends and relatives, while many waited outside throughout the service. The chancel was banked with floral tributes to the deceased who was held in high esteem by all who knew him.

Ture Efraim Peterson was born November 19, 1887, at Gooseberry, the son of Aaron and Ida Marie Peterson, pioneer settlers of that section of Morrow county who came from Sweden in March of that year and homesteaded. He spent his early life in Gooseberry, attending the Rocky Point school and later attending business college in Salem. Upon attaining manhood he took up life in Ione where he engaged in the meat business for many years. He later moved to Heppner where he was connected with the Central market meat department, retiring from that occupation last year following an automobile accident at Hermiston which slowed him down.

Surviving are the widow, Lucy Marian Peterson; four daughters, Mrs. Francis McKeonolds, Alice, Ruth and Martha Peterson; one sister, Mrs. Walter Dolyns, Ione; and four brothers, Richard of Corvallis, Henry of Ione, Victor of The Dalles, and Elmer of Portland, besides other relatives and a host of friends.

March, Military Escort, the school band; processional, "Triumphal Grand March," school band; invocation, Rev. J. Palmer Sorlein; "Impromptu," piano solo, Joan Corwin; "The Joys of Spring," trumpet trio, Jo Anne Graves, Karl Gabler, James Orwick; introduction of speaker, George A. Corwin; address, "Wanted, Riders for Fifty Billion Horses," Mr. Virgil Bolen, Eastern Oregon College; "The Oracle," overture, school band; presentation of class of 1947, Principal Leonard L. Pate; presentation of diplomas, Leta M. Humphreys, chairman board of education; awards, Leonard L. Pate.

The class of 1947 will be the fifth class graduated from Heppner high school under the supervision of George A. Corwin, who is terminating his service here. He will work in the district service during the summer months, having accepted a job in the state of Washington.

Heppner Smothers Arlington Under Cloud of Dust

Wind Stops Game After Score Soared To 15 to Nothing

League Standings	Won	Lost
Wasco	5	1
Fossil	5	1
Heppner	3	3
Condon	5	1
Ione	1	5
Arlington	1	5
Kinzua	1	5

Heppner is right in the middle of wheat-timber league standings as the result of Saturday's Arlington Sunday afternoon in a game called at the end of five innings due to a heavy windstorm. The local team had succeeded in piling up a score of 15 runs in that short time while keeping the Arlington batters away from the home plate despite their five hits.

Way Massey, in the box for Heppner, held the attention of the crowd and struck out six of them. He showed two walks, but up to that, Heppner showed no previous success at all by piling up runs in this out. Taine and Wetherell, Arlington batters, seven of the 15 runs were scored in the fifth inning when the Heppner batters swung for five hits, were scored three runs and two batters were struck by pitched balls. Boland, Heppner shortstop, retained his record of "hard luck" by being hit by pitched balls twice in the game, stopping the very first ball pitched Sunday afternoon and connecting later on. He has had the misfortune of being hit at least once in each game during the season.

A. Massey, Walter, Hoyt and Broadfoot were the big guns at bat for Heppner. Massey and Hoyt collected three for four, Hoyt and Broadfoot two for three.

Van Horn, Heppner second-sacker injured in the game against Fossil, is recovering and should be in Sunday's line-up.

Heppner will meet Hermiston on the local field at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in a non-league game. Manager Willard Blake is trying to get out the full strength of his team as it is not known what Hermiston will have to offer.

Services For Judge Sweek Held This P. M. in Pendleton

Prominent Jurist Was Resident Here For Many Years

Funeral services for the late Judge Calvin L. Sweek were held at 8 p.m. today, in the funeral home of the Olney cemetery. Active pallbearers were Thomas Vaughan, Walter Moore, E. B. Aldrich, Lester Burs, Ernest Young, Roger Kay, and Jack Allen. Honorary pallbearers included business and professional men and friends from Morrow, Union and Baker counties. Going from Heppner were Ralph Thompson, Dale Brown, P. W. Mahoney, J. J. Nys and J. O. Turner to serve in that capacity.

Judge Sweek died at his home in Pendleton at 6:55 Monday afternoon. He had been ill of cancer for many months and his recovery was classed as hopeless. Death finally came as a consequence of a revolver wound the judge inflicted upon himself in a spirit of despondency, as stated in the East Oregonian.

A native of Grant county, where he was born at Hamilton March 3, 1886, he was 61 years of age. He first attended Oregon college at Corvallis, then spent three years at the University of Oregon at Eugene, and was graduated from the University of Michigan law school in 1913. He practiced law in Heppner from 1915 to 1931, being associated part of that time with the late C. E. Woodson. He was a leader in civic work here and also served on the school board. He moved to Pendleton when he was appointed to the circuit bench.

He was a member of the Masonic, B. P. O. Elks and other fraternal organizations, a member of the Episcopal church—a former chancellor of the Episcopal diocese of Eastern Oregon—and an enthusiastic sportsman, a skillful golfer, fisherman and hunter.

In the official tribute of the 5th judicial district written into the records May 2, these words appeared:

"Judge Sweek leaves the bench after 16 years of devoted service with the thanks, admiration, love, affection, and respect of all who admire industry, graciousness, character and sound judgment, and in particular leaves the bench with thanks, admiration, love and affection and respect of those of us who had the outstanding privilege of practicing law before him."

Judge Sweek married Pearl Hawthorne at Eugene June 27, 1914. Survivors are his widow, Mrs. Jack Sweek, and a daughter, Mrs. James (Marie) Rogers, a grandchild, Lawrence Lawson Sweek, all of Pendleton and his mother, Mrs. Emily Sweek of Clatskanie; also five sisters and one brother.

Lone Improvement Fund Boosted By Women's Activity

The Women's Missionary society of the Valby church in Gooseberry gave a dinner and auction sale Friday evening, May 16, at the parish house, the proceeds going to the Lone Memorial Improvement association. The dinner was well patronized by people of the community and from Lone and Heppner, the latter realizing $86 from that source. The auction sale which followed brought an additional $280, making a total of $366 to be turned over to the improvement association.

Top bids of the evening were $30 for five pounds of sugar and a like amount paid for a set of pillow cases and a sheet. Articles ranging from a horse collar to subscriptions to the Gazette Times brought good prices, the spirit back of the bidding compelling bidders to offer good prices in behalf of the community enterprise at lone.

Rev. Alfred Shirley of lone opened the way for the auction with a talk on the importance of the recreational center in lone. Edmund Bristow, lone merchant, was the auctioneer.

1947 Rodeo Queen Chosen Wednesday By Show Directors

Merlyn Kirk Will Head Royal Court During Fall Show

At the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Heppner Rodeo association, held Wednesday evening at the office of Turner, Vair, Marter & Co., Miss Merlyn Kirk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merl Kirk of Heppner was named queen of the 1947 show. Attendees had previously been selected by the four granges of the county and include Shirley Wilkinson, Lexington grange; Frances Hiler, Lena; Laurel Palmateer, Willows; and Corabelle Nutting, Ithea Creek.

Miss Kirk, a bud of blushing beauty—to quote a line from Gilbert and Sullivan—was born Sept. 5, 1926. She graduated from Heppner high school in 1944, being prom queen that year, attended Oregon State college one year and is now in partnership with her father in raising poloed Herefords.

A horsewoman of no mean ability, Miss Kirk is a member of the Wranglers and recently acquired the Arabian colt Jaehal to add to her string of horses. She is a member of a pioneer family, and secretary of Sans Souci Rebekah lodge of Heppner.

Mrs. Frank Wilkinson and Mrs. Paul Hiler have been chosen as chaperones to the queen and her attendants.

Harley Tucker will again furnish the stock for the Rodeo. Harold Erwin will do the announcing, and Frank Chitwood of Amarillo, Tex. has been retained to do the bullfighting and clowning. Efforts are being made to secure Monty Montana and his troupe of trick riders and ropers.

September 5, 6 and 7 are the days chosen by the directors for the 1947 show. The dances, which will be in charge of the junior chamber of commerce, will probably start the latter part of July.

This year's 4-H club show will be held at the Rodeo grounds. There will be exhibits of livestock and crops, as well as an open show for anyone desiring to make exhibits. Nelson Anderson, county agent, is in charge of the 4-H affair.

Joe Beckner heads the show as president; Jim Valentine is arena director, Cliff Dougherty, grounds director; Ray Ferguson, stock director, and Claude Bushke, dance director. Jack Loyd is secretary; Harlan McCurdy Sr., parade director, and Tom Wilson in charge of programs and advertising.

TWOULD MAKE A LONG TRAIN

Can you imagine a freight train 150 miles in length? That would be something like the distance from Heppner to the Bonneville dam. Quite a string of cars, indeed!

A little item coming in with Mrs. Elsie Leathers' Kinzua news this week could be developed into a long and interesting story if there were time to do so, but briefly, the story is this:

A check at the office of the Kinzua Pine Mills Co. reveals that this concern has shipped 15,836 cars of lumber from November 1928 to May 10, 1947. These cars went to almost every state in the Union and the freight charges amounted to nearly seven million dollars.

Council Seeking New Location For Proposed Reservoir

Site in Monahan Field Now Under Consideration

Confronted with too expensive construction costs at the site first selected in the Barratt pasture, the city council is now considering a location at the south part of town on land included in the Frank Monahan ranch. The new site is about 100 yards above the rock bluff near the confluence of Balm Fork and Willow creek, on the west side of Balm fork. It will be safely out of the way of the Heppner flood control dam, if and when that is built.

Bids received by the city on construction of a reservoir on the Barratt site were far in excess of the engineer's estimate. Reason given for the variance was the excessive amount of rock to move. After considering the bids and rejecting them, the council set about to find a more favorable location from a construction standpoint. The spot selected in the Monahan field will represent a difference in the laying of pipe and in lighter construction. It will require 800 feet less pipe to reach the new site than the original location.

The council met Wednesday evening to take up the reservoir site and will meet again this evening to give it further study.

Cemetery Hill Road Widened, Paved By Construction Firm

Improvements Also Made to Streets in Need of Repairing

Taking advantage of the presence in the county of a temporarily idle road construction crew, the city council employed the Newport, Kern & Kibbe company to do some road surfacing and repair work to city streets the first of the week. Chief improvement was widening and surfacing the cemetery hill road. The road is now 12 feet wide with an oiled gravel surface.

Other new work done by the crew was the surfacing of one block taking off of the cemetery road east and then north to the intersection between the Phelps Funeral Home and Mrs. Grace Nickerson's residence.

Repair work and resurfacing was done to South Court street out to the city limits on the Balm Fork road. This section of street was broken up and full of chockholes but is once more in good condition.

Residents along Gilmore street are grateful to the city for putting new surface on that thoroughfare. The work was carried on from the Devine corner to the rear of the Harry O'Donnell place.

More work will be done to the streets during the summer when another road crew will be in the vicinity. It was announced, funds accruing to the city from state highway finances are used to repair the streets.

Local Jaycees To Affiliate With State And National Units

Plans are under way by the local junior chamber of commerce to affiliate with both the Oregon and national units. It was announced today following a meeting held Wednesday evening in the basement of the Methodist church. Here for the purpose of lending assistance and advice in the procedure were four members of the Walla Walla junior chamber of commerce, Al Bradford, president; Bill Kelley, past president; Art Hawman, state director of the Washington state chamber of commerce, and George Jones, past state president of the Washington junior chamber of commerce.

An indication meeting will be held in June, date not yet decided, at which time the Walla Wallians and members of the official board of the Oregon junior chamber of commerce will be present.

Main item of business transacted was acceptance of responsibility for the Rodeo dances. The juniors will be working with their civic building project in mind, hoping to make a few hundred dollars to add to the building fund.

Permits Necessary For Burning Rubbish

Fire Chief Blaine E. Isom announced Tuesday that it is now necessary to obtain permits for burning trash on open fires within the city limits and that all garbage must be hauled away.

Victims of these regulations will suffer the violator to prosecution. Isom pointed out, however, that the permit contains no limit on open fire.

The poppies to be distributed here have been made by disabled veterans at Portland. Auxiliary workers will all be unpaid volunteers, permitting the full amount of all contributions to go into the auxiliary's rehabilitation and child welfare work.
