Charles H. Brown Dies At Redlands

Word has been received in Heppner of the death on November 4 of Charles Henry Brown, 44, at the Community Hospital in Redlands, Calif. Death followed an acute attack of appendicitis.

Brown was a member of a pioneer family of the Blackhorse district and grew up here. He attended the Heppner school until the family disposed of the farm property, now the John Lane place, and moved to California.

The elder Brown was familiarly known as "Dutch." Charles was associated with the Standard Oil Company of California in his earlier years and became a widely known citrus grower of the Redlands district.

Surviving is the widow, Grace; a brother, W. E. Brown, and five sisters, Misses Mollie and Carol Brown, Mrs. Minnie Evans, Mrs. Emma Taylor of Redlands, and Mrs. Clara Fudge of Yucaipa, Calif.

Funeral services were held at 3:30 p.m., Friday, November 7 at the Arthur Cortner chapel, with burial service in Hillside cemetery.

Special Training Provided For Army Escort Service

According to information received at headquarters, all officers and enlisted men selected to escort the bodies of World War II dead to their final resting place in the United States have been specially trained to carry out this important assignment. It was announced today by General Mark W. Clark, commanding general, Sixth army.

Each military escort must attend classes which include instruction by army chaplains as well as ground force officers. General Clark said, and every individual is thoroughly informed with respect to the deep significance of his mission and the necessity of carrying it out in a flawless manner. In addition, all escorts are briefed for each individual assignment with special instructions.

Limited Trapping Season Opens 15th

Trapping season for mink, muskrat, otter and raccoon opens November 15, it is announced by the Oregon State Game commission, and will extend to February 15. There will be no open season on marten, fisher, beaver and ringtail cats.

Trapping license fee is $3 and trappers are required to mark their traps with a brand registered with the commission. Landowners, who are not required to buy a license, must, however, register the location of their land with the commission each season they trap. All persons are required to file within 30 days after the close of the season a report on the number of animals taken.

State refuges will be open to the trapping of furbearing animals with the exception of the following which remain closed: Summer Lake Management area, Lake Oswego game refuge, Sturgeon Lake game refuge, White-tail Deer refuge and all city and municipal watersheds now in refuges.

The last legislature passed a law abolishing the sale of trapping licenses to nonresidents.
