

Foot-And-Mouth Disease Threat To U. S. Livestock

Faced with the threat of invasion of foot-and-mouth disease from Mexico, the Oregon livestock industry is fortunate in being remote from the border, though this does not insure protection, according to F. M. Brandt, head of the division of animal industries at Oregon State college, recently attended a meeting of the U. S. Livestock Sanitary association in Chicago.

Brandt contacted numerous national officers concerning the situation created by the abandonment by Mexico of the program of slaughter which has been underway there in the past year in cooperation with USDA veterinarians in an attempt to suppress the outbreak.

"I think we should expect occasional breaks in the present defense line and that infection will eventually reach United States territory," Brandt reports.

"Northwest dairymen and stockmen might well be considering programs and practices which will best protect this section of the country.

"We are fortunate in being neither adjacent to Mexican borders nor in direct line from possible infected territory to major markets. I am convinced that USDA officials will use every possible means to protect this country from invasion by the disease. It will be highly important to the livestock industry to see that outside pressure does not bring about a slackening of such protective measures."

Brandt learned that the possibility of eradicating foot-and-mouth disease from Mexico is remote under existing conditions, and that effect ive control in this country might even be doubtful if widespread infection occurred.

The U. S. department of agriculture did everything in its power to make the Mexican campaign a success, but was faced by the complications of working inside another country with its

Oregon 4-H'ers Win Chicago Trips

Shirley Jean Arne, Otto Sack, Janet Howell, Lloyd Koch

SUPERIOR records of achievement in 4-H Clothing, Field Crops, Garden and Home Improvement have won 1947 state championship honors for four Oregon club members. Each receives an all-expense trip to the 26th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Nov. 30-Dec. 4. The winners, who were selected by the state club office, and brief outlines of their records follow:

Shirley Jean Arne, 17, of Cottage Grove, is the state winner in the 1947 4-H Garden activity in which Allis-Chalmers provides the awards. Shirley Jean's record shows that during seven years of club work she raised 1 1/2 acres of garden. Her garden exhibits won many placings, including $217.00 in cash prizes, bringing the estimated value of her 4-H projects to $1,356.00. She has learned systematic methods of fertilization and irrigation in her garden projects, as well as better production techniques. She has served as president, secretary, treasurer, and reporter of her club.

Otto Sack, 17, of Portland, is the first state winner in the National 4-H Home Improvement activity, which was inaugurated in the 4-H Club program this year. His award will be a Chicago Club Congress trip provided by Sear-Roebuck Foundation. During seven years in club work, Otto improved his home by making a desk, a shelf and a footstool; refinishing three chests of drawers, two tables, a night stand, and a bench; building a wall-board partition; painting kitchen walls and a bedroom floor and wood-work, and laying bathroom linoleum. He has an excellent all-around 4-H record as a club leader, exhibitor, and demonstrator.

All of these activities are conducted under the direction of the Extension Service of the State Agricultural College and USDA cooperating citizens, Brandt learned. Efforts will be made to hold a defense line several hundred miles south of the international boundary.

Foot-and-mouth disease affects all cloven-footed animals. No cure has ever been found and the only control has been slaughter and destruction. An outbreak in California some years ago was eradicated by wholesale slaughter of infected herds.

Dear Customer

Perhaps this is a poor time of year to talk refrigeration... B-r-r-r! But our Zenith Refrigerator will keep things from freezing as well as keep them cool come next summer. Then, too, it is lots of fun getting ingredients for a Dagwood if you have a Zenith to raid. We got 'em for sale.

If the above cold subject chilled your blood, we've got Coleman Oil Heaters to make you cozy—or maybe you have wood to burn. Burn it in one of our heaters. They cost only a little here.

We have tools and things for the kids as well. Come have a look.
