FHA Announces New Loan Plan In Farm Buying

The Farmers Home administration has added a new feature to its lending program which permits private lenders to make farm purchase, enlargement and development loans with mortgages insured by the federal government, announces Cecil J. Youngstrom, FHA field representative, Portland.

The authority for the insured farm mortgage program, states Youngstrom, is contained in the Farmers Home administration act of 1946 which amends the Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act. The original law specified that only direct government loan funds could be used in the FHA program.

The farm ownership program is designed to enable farm tenants, sharecroppers and farm laborers to buy and operate family type farms, and to enable owners of underused and underdeveloped farms to create adequate family farm units.

Each insured mortgage loan is based upon a normal earning capacity appraisal of the farm by a federal appraiser. This appraisal must be approved by the FHA county committee made up of three persons, at least two of whom are farmers. The committee also considers the qualifications of applicants.

This type of loan is only available to applicants who are unable to get the necessary credit at the rates and terms prevailing in their community. Youngstrom adds: Veterans are given preference for all loans.

To protect the government's interest, the FHA assists each borrower to develop sound operation methods.

Twelve county FHA offices are operated in Oregon, located in the cities of Albany, McMinnville, Salem, Oregon City, Hillsboro, Eugene, Grants Pass, Klamath Falls, Madras, Redmond, LaGrande and Ontario.

Tom Caldwell and son Clair of Irigoin were transacting business at the courthouse in Heppner Tuesday.

CHRISTMAS 1947

This year, may all my light shine down
On happy homes...both farm and town,
To all I serve, both far and near,
A Christmas wish of peace and cheer.
