With the drop of wheat prices during the past week, many farmers are beginning to wonder a lot about parity and support prices.
How high is wheat in relation to parity? This is one of the questions that people ask. Well the price bobs around too much to tell exactly for very long, but at mid-January, at $2.81, the U. S. average farm price of wheat was 27 points above parity. It was 37 points above the support price level of 90 percent of parity.
The parity price then was $2.22, while the support price level was $2.00 a bushel. Thus, at mid-January, wheat averaged 59 cents above parity and 81 cents a bushel above the support price level.
Currently, as of February 9, the parity price of wheat probably is somewhat higher, rather than lower, while the actual price is down sharply compared to mid-January. At Portland, closing bids on ordinary export classes of wheat on February 9 were 55 cents lower than on January 15. A proportionate decline in farm

FARM TRAINING FOR VETERANS UNDER G.I. BILL

Although farm management training under the G.I. Bill ordinarily is limited to one veteran on a single farm, the Veterans Administration has announced three conditions under which two veterans may take training on the same farm.
To qualify for the farm management instruction, a veteran must own his own farm or have economic control of a farm. Veterans who do not own their own farm may take institutional or percent of 1910-14. The calculation produces $2.22 as the parity price then. A year before it was only $1.90 because the index of prices paid was lower. The base price of 88.4 cents was the same—it does not change. The index of prices paid has been going up for several months. It may go higher. If it does, so will the parity price of wheat.

farm-training as employee-trainees of a successful farmer approved by the farm training institution.
The conditions which will qualify two veterans for farm management training on the same farm are:
(1) The approved training institution and the VA must find that conditions on the farm will assure successful training and subsequent self-employment on the same farm for both veterans.
(2) The training of both veterans must meet all requirements specified in Public Law 377 which established the institutional on-farm training program.
(3) The two veterans must furnish documentary evidence that they have formed a bona fide partnership, with equal authority in the management and operation of the farm.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Will's Proud of His Big Ears

Will Dudley's mighty proud of his big ears! Best crop of corn he's grown since '38. And Will, like so many other farmers, has plenty of reason to be proud of what he raises.
The farmer has always been a keystone in our economic life, and the key to our national well-being. But from where I sit, he's more important now than ever. He's not only feeding America—but friends of America overseas—building good will for this country at a time when friendship for democracy is most important.
And farmers have willingly shouldered that responsibility. Will spends extra hours in his cornfield... comes home tired to a temperate glass of beer and early bed, to be ready for the next day's work.
From where I sit, America can be mighty grateful for her five million farmers... for their productivity, hard work, and temperate living—of which Will's moderate glass of beer is proof!
