Farm Field Tour Gives Insight To Weed Control Here

Thirty-five farmers, chemical company representatives and interested persons attended the Farmers' Field Tour held here on Wednesday, May 26. E. R. Jackson and Rex Warren, farm crops specialists, Oregon State college, and William McDole, tillage specialist, Soil Conservation service, discussed practices of conservation and weed control during the day. Enjoying a lunch at noon, as guests of the Heppner chamber of commerce, the group toured central Morrow county in the day. Permanent dry land and irrigated pastures, sweet clover seedings for green manure, and pasture, weed control, annual and perennial, with 2-4-D, diversions, fallow, nitrogen fertilized, fall sown wheat, safflower seeding, and wheat nurseries were visited on the tour. Of special interest was the slurry seed treatment demonstration using the new Ceresan-M seed treatment. Ceresan-M is now available for use. The slurry treatment was demonstrated by Mr. Clement of the DuPont corporation using the new Calkins seed treator with accurate measurements of Ceresan and thorough coverage of all seed. HAS NEW POSITION W. V. Crawford announced while on a visit here recently from Portland that he has been appointed special agent for the Loyalty Group of insurance companies for the state at large. Mr. Crawford has been office manager for the Loyalty Group for many years. He and Mrs. Crawford spent the week end here over May 23, coming at that time on their regular Memorial day visit to do some work in the cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. George Kitching of Salem visited Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Troedson. Mr. Kitching works for the Ailis Chalmers company in Salem. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stender of Salem spent Saturday afternoon in Heppner visiting friends. The Stenders were week-end guests of her sisters, Mrs. Archie Munkers of Lexington and Mrs. Louis Halvorsen of Ione.

As Old AS Business Itself Advertising is not something merely associated with the modern version of business. It is as old as business itself. Advertising was carved on tablets of stone; it was give nexpression by the town crier centuries before radio came upon the air; it was laboriously written on sheets of parchment before the advent of movable types. Invention of the printing press and the adoption of movable type in printing gave advertising its first real boost. Since that time many forms of advertising have developed, some of them giving the printed word stiff competition, but today, in spite of inroads made by competitive forces, newspaper advertising stands out as the most efficient service in establishing markets, or in putting your message over to the public. IF YOU ARE NOT A USER OF NEWSPAPER SPACE, WE SUGGEST THAT YOU TRY IT. There are more than 10,000 people in the area covered by the Gazette Times, an area including five counties and having substantial districts tributary to Heppner. Here is an opportunity to establish new trade relations. Heppner Gazette Times
