

Kinzua 4-H Girls Speak Over Radio At Summer School

By Elsa M. Leathers
Two of the Kinzua 4-H club girls spoke on the radio Wednesday night from KOAC. Barbara Graham spoke on the activities of the club and Ginger Hines spoke on how the girls liked the summer school and who the sponsors were. Les Marks, Wheeler county agent, introduced both girls and also spoke briefly of the damage to the community. Mr. and Mrs. Forest Graham met the girls at Condon on their return trip Friday p.m.

Kinzua Fine Mills vacation for the 4th begins Thursday evening and work will be resumed on July 12. Mill planer and plant will close. Work will go on rebuilding the railroad to Condon down Thirty Mile.

Kinzua plays ball next time on their own diamond July 11 with Arlington. July 4 is an open date for all league teams.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Jobe entertained at their home Thursday evening in honor of her father, Wm. Owens' 73rd birthday. Those present were a granddaughter, Mrs. Archie Gubser and family of Condon; a son, Jack Owens, Mrs. Owens and Opal; friends, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Thomas Sr. and Mrs. Charles Litcheberg. Mr. Owens is affectionately known as "Dad" to his many friends here.

Sgt. Perry Allen Adams of the U. S. navy is visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Adams. He has completed his boot training at San Diego, Cal., and when his 12-day leave is up expects to get ship duty and will be shipped out soon.

Mrs. Marion Wright and Ethel Mitchell and son returned to Kinzua Sunday after a two weeks visit in California. Mrs. Mitchell's son, LeRoy, stayed for a longer visit and will go to Twin Falls, Idaho, where he will stay the rest of summer vacation visiting his sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Moore and son James spent Saturday in the Dalles shopping and also visiting Mr. Moore's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Moore and a brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Harve Moore.

Kinard McDaniel was attending to business matters in Heppner over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Monty Beard are the parents of an 8 1/2 pound baby girl. She was named Mary Annis. The young lady's paternal grandmother is Mrs. Gertrude Beard, and maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Phillips.

Mrs. Floyd Thomas returned home Monday from Portland where she went to bring her little niece, Coletta Joery, to visit through the summer vacation.

Mark Samples spent the past week here from Black Hills, S. Dak., visiting at the home of his

Motorloggers Visit Dude Ranches, Enjoy Fishing, Horseback Riding

A horseback party starts out from the Bar M ranch on Umatilla river some 25 miles east of Pendleton. The lodge shown at left was built in the early 1880s as a stage station.

This is a continuation of a motorlog article appearing in The Sunday Oregonian. The article was written by the Oregon Motor Association and is written in the form of a letter by Paul Leath, staff writer of The Oregonian, to Frank Wheeler, an actor friend now studying teaching at the University of Minnesota.

DEAR FRANK:
Just a little note to let you know I've found the place for you. For two reasons, it's the place: One is that you made a study, as I recall, of ichthyology (which is a $9 way of saying that you studied fish life in your undergraduate days), and the other is my memory of how dear you loved to fish in Watson Lake.

You're probably asking, what the heck has that got to do with you? It's just this: We've just returned from two Oregon dude ranches where there are fish, lots of em. We'll have to work to get them out of the streams or lakes. But these dude ranch owners guarantee they're there, limit catches of trout virtually every day. And the work will do you good, getting off some of the excess fat I know you've accumulated since you shed Uncle's very best uniform.

One of these dude ranches is the Bar M. It's located on the Umatilla river in the rough country about 25 miles east of Pendleton, the famed Round-Up city, and is owned and operated by Howard (Howdy) Baker and his wife, Bonnie.

The other is the Lazy T, located further on over in North-eastern Oregon near Joseph and Enterprise, once the stamping ground of the noted Nez Perce Indian leader, Chief Joseph. It's owned by Charles A. (Chuck) Oswald and his wife, Muriel.

There are a number of dude ranches in Oregon. I only know by personal experience about these two, but if they're all alike—and I'm certain they must be—they're the living exemplification of hospitality.

And the food, Frank, the only thing I warn you against is that you must be prepared to eat well and plenty. It'll be on the table in great quantities, good, wholesome and flavored with the touch that home cooking can give, and you just won't be able to pass up.

But fishing and eating aren't the whole story. There are also horseback riding and pack trips, canoeing, hunting, swimming. The Bar M has a natorium fed from Bingham hot springs, at the lodge.

You're asking, what do I wear? Comfortable, outdoor clothing. Leave the Sunday-go-to-meeting at home. A ten-gallon hat if you want, though it isn't necessary. Levis or frontier pants. Shirts with long sleeves and sweater or jacket for cool evenings outside after sundown. Informality is the word.

Now, you want to know what it'll cost you. At the Bar M, it's $47.50 to $65 a week covering all food and lodging, the only difference being whether you want a horse every day or not. At the Lazy T, the rates range from $65 to $85, with the same difference.

You ask what are these places like? They're big, comfortable ranches, with sizeable dining rooms, quarters to care for from one to a half dozen or more in a party, either in the main lodge or in nearby cabins. They're finished rustic style, with knotty pine used in keeping with their surroundings. They have electric lights and plumbing and all other facilities we regard as necessities nowadays.

In a word, Frank, it's a good deal like one man styled it: "It's roughing it in comfort."

So, I say, Frank, drop your pencils and books for a bit and head for God's country. You'll never be sorry, if you do. And if you do, be sure and look me up and I'll dig out a bamboo pole to replace the one I nearly threw away for you.

Best of everything, PAUL.

Pioneer of 1880 Laid To Rest At Lone Wednesday

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock p.m., Wednesday, at the Lone Cooperative church for Mrs. Louvise Louy, whose death occurred Tuesday at Hermiston.

Born in the state of Ohio in 1867, Mrs. Louy, whose maiden name was Louvise Lorraine Carl, crossed the plains to Morrow county in 1880, the family settling on a tract of land about four miles north of Lone. She was married to Reuben Sperry at Heppner and to this union three children were born, Carl, Robert, and Elisha Sperry. Carl and Robert preceded her in death, as did the father, who passed away in 1913. In 1927 she was married to John P. Louy. He died in 1938.

Surviving besides the son, Elisha, are a sister, Nora Holland of Seattle, Wash., and a brother, Vant Carl of Astoria. There are also three granddaughters and two great-grandsons.
