

VETERANS REINSTATE G. I. INSURANCE

During the final week of reinstating G.I. insurance without a physical examination, approximately 35 veterans of this area revived their term policies through the Pendleton office of the Veterans Administration.

does not include others who applied directly by mail to the Northwest insurance center at Seattle.

Contrary to an impression which grew out of the "easy reinstatement" deadline of July 31, ex-G.I.'s may still regain their service insurance, Mr. Cox pointed out.

This estimate, Charles M. Cox, VA representative said today.

A "physical" will be required, however, to reinstate all policies except those which have been lapsed for less than three months. "Half of all recent insurance revivals have involved changes in beneficiaries," the VA aide commented. "Many veterans believe that when they marry or acquire children or are divorced, their insurance beneficiaries change automatically."

"Nothing is farther from the truth," Cox emphasized. "A veteran must notify the VA in writing when he wants his beneficiary changed. No change can be made after his death."

Washington Week

By CHARLES L. EGENROAD

Washington, D. C.—"They can do it in 15 days," President Truman told the Democrat National Convention in Philadelphia when he announced he would call the 80th Congress into special session.

He referred to the time it would take Congress to enact legislation he said he would place before the special session.

In 15 days he felt that Congress could give him the police state powers he wants, pledge the spending of hundreds of millions of dollars more of the taxpayers' money, set national policies which many a Democrat Congress did not see fit to establish in 14 years of solid control, and study the most critical international situation the nation has faced since Pearl Harbor.

The man who staged this one-man gang-up on the 80th Congress—which he called the "worst" in history because it did not go pell-mell into every crackpot scheme the administration offered—has changed his tune since moving from the Senate over to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

On March 21, 1939, then Senator Truman delivered an address before a joint session of the Missouri Legislature on the subject of "Present Issues Before Congress."

"I found out very soon after I had settled down to a study of my duties," he said on that occasion, "that the business of a good legislator is NOT TO GET THINGS DONE QUICKLY AND EFFICIENTLY, as a good administrator has to do, but to PREVENT IF POSSIBLE THE ENACTMENT INTO LAW OF THE

LAND MANY CRAZY AND CRACKPOT MEASURES

"I have found that MUCH DELIBERATION AND STUDY ON ALL PROPOSED LEGISLATION IS A GREAT DEAL BETTER FOR THE PUBLIC WELFARE THAN TOO MUCH HURRY AND IMMEDIATE ACTION."

This same man who now wants a quick appropriation of hundreds of millions, pledges of hundreds of millions more, and the power of a police state dictator, all within 15 days, made another speech as a Senator. On June 29, 1943 (just a year before he became the Democrat vice-presidential nominee), Mr. Truman asserted:

"It seems that when public funds are to be expended no one has any interest in what happens to them, no matter what his responsibilities may be under his oath of office.

"Unless this body (the Senate) and the House of Representatives exercise their prerogatives in connection with the purse strings of the government, much of the money appropriated will be thrown away for no good purpose whatever."

It was only a few weeks ago that President Truman decried these prerogatives of the Congress.

A record number of entries is expected in the breeding classes for light horses at the Oregon

State Fair, September 6 to 12.

Despite production costs that have tripled since 1941, admission and show prices at the Oregon State Fair in Salem, September 6 to 12, will remain at pre-war levels. Manager Leo Spitzbart said this week adult admissions to the grounds would be fifty cents with children 12 and under admitted free.

Oregonians will figuratively talk and eat their state fair in Salem this year. Fair officials said this week distribution would begin immediately of 300,000 restaurant place mats, upon which appear a picturization of the 83rd annual Oregon State Fair.

PHEASANT LIBERATIONS WELL UNDER WAY

The liberation of ringneck pheasants is now nearing completion, according to John McKean, chief of upland game for the Oregon State Game commission.

Slightly more than 42,000 birds have been liberated from the four game farms and the seven field rearing projects operated by the commission. The work is continuing and there are still more than 10,000 birds to be turned out.

Liberation sites for the birds are chosen by the district agents of the commission and are chosen with special attention to available feed, cover and water for the newly released birds.
