In this growing region...

Every Kilowatt Counts

Be thrifty in the use of your washer. Your thrift will save clothing, time, money. You'll be helping to save kilowatts, too. That's important, for enormous growth in industry and population has increased the demand for electricity. Peak power needs in the Pacific Northwest have jumped 1,448,000 kilowatts, or 57%, since 1945. Every kilowatt has a big job to do, so use electricity wisely. Save time and money by following the tips listed below. You'll also be saving electricity for a fast-growing Pacific Northwest.

HOW TO SAVE...

Soak clothing in cold water, without soap, for 20 minutes before washing. Home economists say this practice is easier, faster, more practical.

Run your washer only 7 or 8 minutes. This much washing will save clothing, usually brings it out sparkling clean, ready to rinse.

Wash as often as you have a tubful of clothes. Frequent washing saves hot water, eliminates the big job that brings on "washday blues."
