4-H CLUB NEWS

Four-H livestock club members are beginning to select their steers and breeding animals for the 1948-49 project year which begins November 1. Among those who have selected animals are Ingrid Hermann, Ione, Shorthorn steer; Janice Beamer, Shorthorn steer; and Neil Beamer, Shorthorn steer and heifer. All of these Shorthorns were selected from the Sherman-Ferguson ranch on Willow creek.

Interest in 4-H livestock projects is high and it appears now that there will be a considerable increase in membership. Anyone who is interested in carrying a 4-H project this year is urged to contact the county agent's office in order to be enrolled.

Miss Ingrid Hermann, 15-year-old 4-H girl from Ione won a blue ribbon on her room improvement exhibit at Pacific International last week. Miss Hermann also won a green ribbon on her cotton school dress at the same show. This is the second year that this attractive 4-H girl has taken top honors at P.I. Tuesday both of the county agents were at Boardman visiting Mrs. Gene Stalcup, Mrs. Flossie Coats, Mrs. Evelyn Black, and Nate Thorpe, all 4-H leaders, winding up the records for the club year.

(Seal) LA VERNE W. MARTER,
My commission expires Oct. 20, 1948.

Charles M. Cox, veterans administration representative at Pendleton, urges.

A veteran's insurance file, Cox stated, should contain: 1) Proper beneficiaries, both principal and contingent; 2) Instructions to the VA on how insurance is to be paid to beneficiaries; 3) Amount and type of G.I. insurance he wants to keep in force.

Veterans are urged to bring their G.I. policies up to date, because many have neglected to name new beneficiaries after marriage, divorce or the death of an original beneficiary.

In event a veteran dies without naming a beneficiary, his G.I. insurance goes to his estate and may be subject to various taxes. It is even possible the proceeds may not go to the person he intended.

Four optional methods for payment are available now. Insured veterans should request their desired settlement, and should always pay G.I. insurance premiums by the due date to avoid lapsing.
