Hi-Ways to Health

By Ada R. Mayne ONE DISH CASSEROLE IDEAS Meals that are baked and delivered to the table all in one are a boon to the busy homemaker and very popular with the family, too. There is something so tempting about a sizzling savory casserole served piping hot at the table! Fish and seafood prepared in a cream sauce base lend themselves very well to these meal-in-a-dish casseroles. With the variety of fresh and frozen fish and seafood on the market and wide selection of canned fish available, it's a simple trick to plan a meal using this nutritious protein food. A well-cooked, smooth cream sauce combines perfectly with many delicious casserole dishes. A good cream sauce is easily prepared and adds so much to many dishes, that it seems almost unbelievable that some cooks will try to use high heat to hurry cooking—the resulting sauce, usually lumpy, adds nothing to any dish. Use low heat or a double boiler and don't divide your attention once the sauce is started—it needs constant stirring until it thickens. Using cream sauce is also an excellent way to include more milk in the diet, too. Here are two delicious seafood dishes made with a cream sauce base. All that is needed to complete the meal is a cooked vegetable, crisp tossed salad, a beverage and dessert. Salmon Shortcake au Gratin' (Serves 6) 3 cups medium white sauce 1 cup grated American cheese 1/2 cups flaked salmon 1 tsp lemon juice 1 cup cooked peas Makes 3 cups medium white sauce. Add the cheese, salmon, peas and lemon juice and heat thoroughly. Make baking powder biscuit dough and bake in a round cake pan. Split and serve hot salmon mixture as a filling and trimming for biscuit shortcake. Or serve on split hot biscuits, or on toasted bread. Scalloped Fish 3 Tbsp butter 1 Tbsp minced onion 2 Tbsp minced green pepper or dill pickle 1 1/2 cups medium white sauce 1 tsp bottled thick condiment sauce 1 1/2 to 2 cups flaked, cooked or canned fish 1/3 cup grated American cheese 1/4 cup soft bread crumbs Melt butter in skillet; add onion and green pepper, and saute until tender, stirring occasionally. Then add white sauce with condiment sauce and fish. Turn into 1 1/2 qt. greased casserole, ramekins, or scallop shells. Top with combined cheese and crumbs. Bake in moderately hot oven, 400 F. for 15 minutes until crumbs are brown. Cooked or canned flaked salmon, tuna, crab, shrimp, cod, haddock or halibut may be used in this recipe. Chopped hard-cooked eggs may be substituted for part of the fish.

News From C. A. Office

The Oregon State Board of Forestry has announced the species of trees which are now available for planting of farm shelterbelts and windbreaks. The trees available for Eastern Oregon this year are Black Locust, Ponderosa Pine, Scotch pine, Chinese Arborvitae, Russian Mulberry and Green Ash. The cost of the seedlings is $3 per thousand. No order can be accepted for less than 25 trees or less than fifty cents. Order blanks are available at this office. There has been considerable interest in the feeding of potatoes to livestock and many farmers have called at this office for comparative feed values. Here are a few of the comparisons: 100 pounds of shelled corn equals 450 lbs. of fresh potatoes. 100 lbs. of alfalfa hay equals 300 lbs. of fresh potatoes. 100 lbs. of corn silage equals 100 lbs. of fresh potatoes. 100 lbs. of mixed grain equals 350 lbs. of cooked potatoes when fed 2 to 1 with the grain, to swine. 28 lbs. of alfalfa and 12 lbs. of barley equal 100 lbs. of fresh potatoes for lamb feeding. A Columbia basin "conservation man-of-the-year" is to be selected by a seven-man committee appointed by the president of the Eastern Oregon Wheat League and will be announced as a special feature of that organization's annual meeting in Condon on December 2 to 4. This announcement was made recently by E. R. Jackman, O.S.C. extension farm crops specialist, and member of the selection committee. Jackman states a Columbia basin farmer will be named to receive the award on the basis of work he has done in conservation on his own farm. Ralph McEwen, Haines, president of the wheat league, says in this way his organization hopes to call attention to practical conservation measures that might be undertaken in the Columbia basin area. This section is frequently described as one of the most critical erosion areas in the United States. Idea for the award was proposed recently by Jackman during a meeting of Columbia basin agricultural conservation association committee members and soil conservation specialists. The proposal was adopted as part of a 16 point program to further Columbia basin soil conservation practices. The wheat league, sponsor of recent soil conservation research legislation, will make a suitable award to the farmer selected, McEwen states. A full day of the coming wheat league meeting, McEwen has announced, will be devoted to conservation. Among points to be considered in making the conservation man-of-the-year selection are positive measures that have been taken by the farmer to control erosion on his own farm during the past year, and the degree in which these practices are applicable to other lands in the area. In addition to Jackman, members of the selection committee are Floyd Roof, Wasco, chairman; Roy Foreman, Antelope; Charles Nish, Mikkalo; Frank Anderson, Heppner; Lester King, Pendleton, and Ray Kent, Pendleton.
