ECONOMY SUPPER DISHES

When the wind blows cold and the rains beat upon the window pane, most families gather round the supper table with all the faith in the world that Mother will produce something steaming and savory from the kitchen. Mom usually does pretty well, too, what with high prices and a limited budget to contend with. Hearty economical supper dishes that really taste good are something every homemaker is looking for these days—and they aren't too easy to find.

Looking at the economy side, a little meat may be made to go a long way simply by combining it with a cream sauce and adding fresh or canned vegetables. One "variety" meat that is not often used in casserole dishes is tongue. Many delectable dishes may be made with pieces that are left over from the day the tongue is prepared. It may be diced and served in a cream sauce flavored with horseradish on top of fluffy rice or noodles. Leftover corned tongue is particularly delicious served this way.

1 1/2 cups tongue broth
1 1/2 cups milk
4 Tbsp butter
6 Tbsp flour
1 2 tsp salt
4 tsp horseradish
12 slices beef tongue

Cook carrots, beans, potatoes and onion in the tongue broth until tender. Drain, saving broth and adding enough milk to make 3 cups of liquid. Make a white sauce with the butter, flour and liquid. Add salt, horseradish and vegetables. Slice the cold tongue about 1/8 inch thick. Pour half the creamed vegetables into a 7-cup casserole and arrange half of the sliced tongue over it; add rest of vegetables and lay rest of tongue slices on top. Cover and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for about 20 or 30 minutes. For a touch of the Hungarian packed with good old American appetite appeal, try these tasty, thrifty cabbage rolls. Ground beef may be substituted for the pork in the recipe.

1/2 cup rice
1 1/2 tsp salt
1/8 tsp pepper
8 large cabbage leaves

Cut pork in 1/2 inch cubes, trimming off excess fat. Fry out trimmings in skillet. Cook onions in drippings until golden brown. Pour off fat. Add tomato soup and water. Heat, wash rice. Combine with meat and seasoning. Steam cabbage leaves until limp, but not thoroughly cooked. Fill each with approximately 1/3 cup of rice and meat mixture. Fold 2 edges of cabbage leaf together. Roll loosely. Place in baking dish. Add tomato sauce. Cover. Bake in moderate oven 375 degrees for 1 1/2 hours. Serve hot with remaining tomato sauce.
