DECEMBER MONTH OF GREATEST DANGER TO PERSONS ON FOOT

December is the month of greatest danger to pedestrians. and drivers and walkers alike are beign urged by Secretary of tra caution to avoid marring the holiday season with needless tra-

Newbry pointed out that while only 23 percent of Oregon traffic deaths last year were pedestrians. the proportion jumped to 41 percent in December. He cited longer hours of darkness rain, and poor visibility, streets thronged with holiday shoppers, and more widespread drinking as the principal factors increasing normal traffic

Vision obscured by armloads of packages or umbrellas held low over the head is another common source of pedestrian mishap, the safety official said. "It's seldom the car you see that hits you. It's the one you don't see," he reminded.

Newbry urged motorists to be sure all aids to visibility such as windshield wipers, defrosters, and lights, are properly functioning, and to keep speeds well within the safety margin. A few good life-saving reminders for pedes trians are: 1. Don't walk behind or in front of a street car or bus immediately after alighting.

2. Always use crosswalks, safev islands, and other safeguards Never cross in the middle of the

3. Don't depend on the driver seeing you at night. Wear or carry something light-colored to reflect light. 4. Never step into the roadway from between parked cars. 5. If necessary to walk in the roadway walk on the left side, facing oncoming traffic. 6. After waiting for another car to pass, remember to look the other direction again to be sure the way is still clear.
