THANKS FOR TURNING THAT SWITCH TO LOW!

It may be only a small saving, but every bit helps. When the kettle begins to steam, and you turn the element to "low" on your electric range, you're helping to save valuable electricity. Each kilowatt saved is important, because the power situation all over the Pacific Northwest will be "tight" until warm weather reaches high into the mountains to start streams flowing normally again.

Keep up the good work... use appliances sparingly. Please continue evening peak-hour savings, but also save EVERY hour of the day and night.

HERE ARE 4 OF MANY WAYS TO SAVE ELECTRICITY

- Don't run your washing machine longer than necessary — 7 or 8 minutes will usually get clothes sparkling clean. Don't overload the tub. Keep moving ports closed.
- If your electric iron has an automatic control, use correct temperature for material to be ironed. And don't keep your iron turned on when not actually in use. Save every bit of electricity.
- Don't place hot foods in your refrigerator. Defrost regularly. Don't open the door any more than necessary. Constantly letting warm air inside makes the refrigerator work overtime.
- If you run a business establishment, you'll find lots of ways to save electricity. Keep motor loads as low as possible and turn off any unnecessary lights. Help everyone by saving electricity.
