V. F. W. Circular Letter Gets Results For Ambulance Fund

During the past week-end the local post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars placed in the mails a circular letter which included a short explanation of the purpose of the current campaign to acquire an ambulance for this locality, and an appeal for immediate contributions. This method of reaching the people of the county was withheld until all preparations were completed for acquiring and operating the ambulance. At the present time there are a number of qualified drivers. The ambulance is completed and in storage awaiting delivery.

The difference between the total contributions to date and the cost of the ambulance could be financed through a loan agency. However it is felt that it would be undesirable to use the people's money to meet financing costs which would offer no returns in service to the community. The only answer is for everyone to express his desire for local ambulance service in cash—immediately.

A number of persons have volunteered contributions during the last few months, and their expression of interest is greatly appreciated. Now the whole-hearted cooperation of everyone is urgently needed. The generosity of the people of Morrow county in helping their more distant neighbors has often been shown. It is hardly to be expected that they will now fail to provide this comfort and protection for their next-door neighbors and themselves. The benefits of this plan for an ambulance are that there will be no charge for drivers' services, and that the cost of operation will be the only factor determining the charge for its use. ## Big Four Sawmill At Monument Set In Motion Monday

About 80 People From Heppner on Hand for Opening

Approximately 80 Heppner people drove to Monument Monday afternoon to participate in official opening ceremonies of the Broadfoot Bros. Big Four Lumber Co. sawmill. Principal showing made by the visitors was the Heppner school band, directed by Robert Collins, which enlivened the occasion and gave the Monument people some of the first band music heard in their community in a number of years.

Sponsored by the Heppner chamber of commerce, no less than 20 cars were employed to carry the band, CC members and other interested citizens. The caravan arrived at the new little industrial center by 3 p.m. and after personal inspection of plant, pond, and for some of the younger folks, the town itself, assembled in the sawing plant for a brief program. The Monument school was dismissed a little early and school children and residents of the town and surrounding country gathered at the mill to participate in the ceremonies. It was estimated that approximately 550 people were present.

Following three numbers by the band, O. G. Crawford, president of the Heppner chamber of commerce, extended greetings from that organization and then introduced Judge Garnet Barratt who, capably expressed the good will of Morrow county to the people of Monument and vicinity. "This has always been known as a great sheep and cattle country and until recent years no thought was given to the timber and the part it would play in the future development of the region," he said. "And now we are witnessing the start of an industry that will be very much in the foreground in the years to come." The judge expressed the hope that closer relationship will be established between the two communities and that eventually the distance will be lessened by construction of a more direct route.

Henry Tetz said he had never understood how Monument got its name. A monument, he said, was usually erected to commemorate something or other. "Now you have erected a monument to the future," he concluded.

Demsey Boyer, long time resident of Monument and one of the leading business men of that part of Grant county, responded for his community. It was a great pleasure to him to have Heppner turn out on this happy occasion for Monument as he spent his boyhood and attended school at Heppner. While the school could not boast of a band in his day, he was proud of the showing made by Mr. Collins and his young musicians and expressed
