A Friendly Visit

Business worries were left behind by business and professional people who took time off to drive to Monument Monday afternoon to participate in ceremonies marking the opening of the new sawmill plant of the Broadfoot Brothers, the Big Four Lumber Company. It was a happy occasion for all and despite the dust and roughness of the road over the mountains all felt it was a worthwhile trip.

Although sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, the caravan was not organized for business reasons. It was an opportunity to make a social call on our neighboring community and those making the round trip entered into the spirit of the occasion and the visit was purely friendly.

It was an occasion for most of our citizens to learn the need for road improvement across the mountains and to find out how much in earnest the people of the Monument section are relative to a shorter and better road. Cutting off 28 miles between Monument and Heppner would bring the two communities to little more than one hour apart and would be acceptable to those who have heavy hauling to do to a railroad—and the way things are lining up around Monument there will be plenty of heavy hauling for years to come.

Introduction of the sawmill industry on a larger scale is only the beginning of development over that way. With the coming of electrification of the district there will be more diversity in agriculture. Already there is evidence that dairying will be followed more extensively. To make dairying pay there must be a ready outlet to market, or to a processing plant that can handle the raw product. Distance to that market, the mileage actually involved, will have a strong bearing on the successful operation of a dairy industry, as well as the timber industry and other pursuits which require outside markets. Construction of a short cut between Monument and the mouth of Chapin creek—the old stage route brought up to date—would provide an outlet for the products of that section and would certainly aid in the development of a small corner of the world rich in natural resources.

What Difference In Party Thinking?

Jeffersonian Democrats and the general run of Republicans are not far apart in their thinking on Americanism these days. They have seen enough infiltration in both parties of the so-called liberals who are in reality nothing more than pinks, to say nothing of being more or less red, and are beginning to realize the extent to which these brethren have led us along the paths of socialism. That the Democratic press is as much alarmed as the Republican party and press may be seen in the following comment in the Foley (Aia.) Onlooker (Dem.):

... We believe that every American should have the opportunity to provide security for himself, but we have no patience with the idea of dependence upon a paternalistic government for our security... The efforts which are now being made in official Washington to provide more and more paternalism for a free people should be discouraged by every citizen of America. It just isn't sound.

Now read what the Berea (Ohio) Enterprise (Rep.) says:

It smells the same. A short time ago it was proposed that the government finance the building of private plants which could be taken over and operated by the government if prices got too far out of hand.

Now the same thing is proposed to prevent deflation. In the event of deflation, there will, of course, be unlimited taxes to enable the government to take care of us all.

Oh, yeah! (End of quote).

It's too bad the Civil War can't be forgotten when presidential election time rolls around. Northern Republicans and Southern Democrats get along OK until it is time to elect a president and then the century-old slavery bugaboo arises to make people vote their prejudices rather than the current issues at stake.
