THESE CRAFTSMEN SERVE OREGON

By pooling their abilities, machinist Robert L. Hobbs (left), his brother, welder Richard G. Hobbs (center), and draftsman Arno G. Kertz built the large Hobbs Machine Works at Lebanon. This thoroughly equipped shop helps Oregon grow by serving the South Santiam lumbering-farming region. Since a modest beginning in 1945, the plant has built or repaired about every type of machinery—even manufacturing as many as 10 units a day of an exceptionally versatile small tractor originated in Eugene. Services of the First National Bank of Lebanon, affiliate of the First National Bank of Portland, have helped the firm grow to meet its area's needs.

TURNING SWAMPS INTO PASTURES

Dairy farmers in the Nestucca Valley—working together—have added 4425 acres to their pastures in eight years. Their South Tillamook County Soil Conservation District buys and operates necessary equipment. It clears, ditches (see photo), dikes and seeds the swamp-like bottom lands. Each farmer pays for work done on his land. Now the coastal valley has a total of 12,000 acres of pasture lands, with more being added. Here graze Jerseys and Guernseys whose milk becomes the famed Tillamook cheeses. Financial assistance from the First National at Tillamook helped the project get started and continues active in the reclamation work being carried on today.

BUILDING OREGON TOGETHER

Hard-working Oregon individuals, family groups, business associates and farmers—by bettering themselves—help build our state. Many and varied are their endeavors—as shown by the examples here—but their combined efforts produce the products, services and jobs on which Oregon prosperity is based.

By providing constructive banking service to energetic people in all walks of life, we help build Oregon—family by family, farm by farm, business by business. Let us show you how our helpful service can benefit you.
