THE PINKERTONS — WHEAT RANCHERS

There's no difficulty getting a harvesting crew together on the 1240-acre Pinkerton wheat ranch near Moro. Father Harry B. Pinkerton (center) operates the combine. His son, Dean, (right), is tractor driver, and son, Allan, truck driver. The ranch has been in the family since 1886. From its rolling hills, rising to 2000 feet, may be seen Mt. Jefferson, Mt. Hood, Mt. Rainier and other snow-tipped Cascade range peaks. It is a summer fallow operation. Modern farming methods keep it highly productive. Up-to-date in banking, too, the Pinkertons use services of First National Sherman County Branch.

MEAT PACKERS HELP STATE GROW.

D. E. Nebergall opened a meat business in Albany in 1911. First-day income was $12.35. His 12x12 slaughter house today has grown into a four-floor packing plant, the D. E. Nebergall Meat Co., with business in excess of $3,000,000 annually. The firm, including its Eugene branch, markets its own brand of hams, bacon, lard, sausages, fresh meats, poultry feed in Western Oregon between Salem and Roseburg. Shown, from left, are Nebergall; his daughter, Helen Zolskey, and sons, Olin and Raymond, all company officials. "The complete financial services of the Albany Branch of First National have been most helpful to us," Nebergall said.

BUSINESS GREW FROM PANSY SEEDS.

"People thought we were crazy in 1927 for trying to grow pansy seeds at Grants Pass," recalls C. W. Harold (right). However, the Rogue River Valley looked just right to both Harold, a mid-West plant grower since 1902, and his son, M. E. Harold (left). Since then Harold's Pansy Gardens have earned world-wide recognition, not only for pansies, but for tuberous begonias—and for many new varieties of each. The firm's printery lists 6000 wholesale customers and 30,000 individuals. The Harolds credit early cooperation of First National of Grants Pass with helping them build this Oregon business.

In every part of our state you'll find busy people—people of vision and energy—people working hard as they better themselves. And as each undertaking expands it creates greater opportunities for all of us in Oregon. Endeavors of the thousands who are Building Oregon Together are many and varied, such as those pictured here.

On our part, those of us in the First National Group make constructive banking services widely available to help Oregon grow—family by family, farm by farm and business by business.
