

Mustang Fighting Power Turns Back Arlington Threat

Honkers Started Fast But 'Stangs Finished Strongest

What appeared to be a possible Arlington victory in the first quarter was turned into a rout for the invaders Friday afternoon when the Heppner Mustangs got their second wind and began to show some of the fighting spirit that has pulled them out of bad holes before. The visitors showed surprising strength and skill in executing plays and had the local lads guessing for awhile, but when they hit their stride it was a different story.

It didn't help the Mustang outlook to have the visitors receive the initial kickoff and march right down the field for a touchdown in less than two minutes. Somewhat dismayed, but undaunted, the Mustangs returned the compliment a few minutes later when it came their turn to receive the kickoff. A little later Arlington recovered a Heppner fumble on Heppner's 25-yard line and soon ran the ball over for the second TD. Failure to convert left the score 13-7 in the Honkers' favor. With 30 seconds to go in the quarter, Heppner ran 30 yards to pay dirt. Connor made the extra point on an end run. Score, Heppner 14, Arlington 13.

Both teams exhibited determination to win in the second half, playing a scoreless third quarter, but in the fourth canto it was Heppner all the way. Ruhl smashes off tackle made long gains for Heppner. Ruhl and Green each scored in this period, making one conversion and failing on the other.

Heppner outpointed the visitors on other features of the game. On first downs the count was 17-5 and on yardage 367-114.

Pheasant Invades Braden Building In Nocturnal Flight

A midnight prowler invaded the Braden Tractor & Equipment company store in Heppner Friday night, breaking a window to make the entrance. It might be said that the word prowler is unfair for the invasion seems to have been more of an accident than otherwise.

A hen pheasant finding herself within the boundary lines of the city and perhaps somewhat confused by the bright lights along the main stem was attracted by the peace and quiet of the interior of the Braden store and dis-regarding the glass front flew right in. All was peace and quiet within until the pecking force began to arrive the next morning and then the bird decided it was time to get out—which she did by flying right out of the aperture she made on her entrance the night before.

Heppner Cleaners To Start Building New Plant at Once

Collins Purchases Equipment Used in Present Location
Construction of a modern cleaning plant will start early next week, according to W. C. Collins, operator of the Heppner Cleaners the past two and one-half years. The building will be located next to the Standard Station plant just north of the present cleaning establishment on property purchased by William and Daisy Collins from A. A. Scouten.

Plans call for a one-story structure, 24 feet wide by 72 feet long to be built on Light Rock, one of the newer interlocking types of building material. Excavation has been made to permit the laying of wood flooring in the main work room and office, while the cleaning department will have concrete flooring and will be fire-proofed as completely as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins have purchased the equipment of the Heppner Cleaners from Mrs. Adelle Hannan, they having been operating under a lease since taking over early in 1947. New equipment will be added when the new building is ready for occupancy sometime in the early spring. They have leased the present building until April 1, 1950.

Coming here from Cottage Grove where they were engaged in the laundry and cleaning business for many years, the Collinses have built up the local business to a point where further expansion demanded more space and they decided to put up their own building. With more space, added equipment and better working arrangement they will be prepared to give even better service than in the past.

Council Wrestles With Problem of Sewage Disposal

Monday evening's session of the city council was occupied to some extent with a discussion of the garbage disposal problem. Difficulties arising over the roadway in the dump ground have presented a problem which has held up delivery of garbage by the hauling contractor and this in turn has brought criticism of the service from some of the cash customers.

Mayor Conley Lanham asked the streets and public property committee to investigate the possibility of securing a new site, a matter that was attended to the following day without satisfactory results. The committee was also delegated to see what could be done about the matter of improving entrance to the present site and report back to the next meeting of the council.

Another task of the council was making a survey of the creek channels running through the town with a view to having them cleaned out. This was investigated Tuesday in company with a contractor from Walla Walla and it was decided to have the work done immediately. This will include removing the heavy growth of willows along the courses of both Willow and Hinton creeks, as well as removing debris and occasional rock and dirt bars that have a tendency to cause overflow in times of high water. It is a move prompted by motives of both safety and sanitation.

La Verne Van Marter, city treasurer, was present and requested the council to provide assistance in his office in counting and wrapping the intake from the parking meters. It was decided by motion that an employee of the bank be paid for doing this work, which necessitates several hours of count and wrapping each time the meter boxes are emptied.

CHRISTMAS TREE HARVEST
All state forestry wardens available will be in the field this year in an effort to curtail the unlawful cutting of Christmas trees which usually begins about the middle of November, said Acting State Forester George Spaur this week.

The act requires that a source of seed for a new natural crop be left, that enough seedlings be left or a minimum of 300 trees per acre be left, otherwise an owner must reforest the land himself or the forestry department will do the job and send the bill to the owner.
