Many Oregonians Back Hoover Report, Says MacNaughton

One hundred thousand Oregon citizens have heard the facts about the Hoover commission's recommendations for efficiency in the United States government, and more than 125 clubs and organizations have adopted resolutions supporting it or making the Hoover commission's report their major study project for 1950, according to E. B. MacNaughton, Portland college president and chairman of the Oregon Citizens' Committee for the Hoover Report.

Twenty five Oregon counties have a chairman for the Hoover report campaign, a 15-member speakers' bureau has been set up, and the Oregon fraternal congress of 23 groups and the Oregon state medical society, both supporting organizations, swell the total of Oregon citizens who are committed to support the Hoover report recommendations to probably more than 250,000. MacNaughton stated in summarizing pro-Hoover report progress in Oregon.

recommendations for federal cost cutting, tax reduction and strengthening of the president's authority for bureau streamlining, has been one of the greatest outpouring of public opinion on a matter before the Congress in Oregon's history, MacNaughton said.

Activity of the Business and Professional Women, the League of Women Voters, the Association of University Women, Kiwanis International and United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, all co-operating organizations, has been outstanding in Oregon, according to MacNaughton, who cited the Oregon association of county judges, the Pacific NW hardware and implement dealers' association, and the Oregon Association of Realty Boards, as typical of the diverse groups that have resolved in favor of, or endorsed the Hoover commission's report objectives.

DR. MAGRUDER, AUTHOR OF TEXTBOOKS, DIES AT OSC

Dr. Frank Abbott Magruder, doubtless the most widely known author-educator in Oregon, died at Corvallis December 2 of a heart attack at 67 years of age. His death came two years following his retirement as professor of political science at Oregon State where he had served continuously for 30 years.

Dr. Magruder was recently the center of a controversy over a paragraph in his nationally used text, "The American Government," which was banned by the Houston, Texas, school board. A later edition with the paragraph modified, has since been adopted there. The incident brought a flood of letters and supporting press editorials to the author who has been recognized as among the fairest, most patriotic and democratic textbook writers in the country.

Several other texts, including one on international relations, have gone through many editions and are widely adopted. Aside from his family and his work, his chief interest was the Methodist church and especially its work with young people. The big youth camp north of Tillamook at Barview, which he took the lead in developing, was named Camp Magruder in his honor about two years ago.
