OSEA WANTS CHANGES
 The Oregon State Employees association directors meeting in Salem Saturday planned for more desirable hospital coverage for more employees regular pay days on fixed dates, collection of overtime either by time off or in cash and unemployment compensation.
 A committee was appointed to investigate the possibility of expanding the present group insurance program to include state employees who are not members of OSEA. At present only members are covered.
 Under existing rules vacation time not used during one year is not allowed to accrue by many departments. This discrepancy will be investigated.

ATTACK GAS TAX
 Two oil companies filed a complaint in the Marion county circuit court this week against Earl T. Newbery, secretary of state, charging that sections of the gas tax law are unconstitutional.
 Richfield Oil Corporation and Standard Oil company of California assume taxes levied on federal agencies by the state are "an unlawful burden" imposed beyond the power of the state, on the U. S. government.
STATE MAILING MACHINE
 State Tax Commissioner Ray E. Smith of the income tax department has a gadget working that will stuff up to six forms in 72 envelopes a minute, lick them and press the tabs closed. The new machine will do the work of 14 employees and will put out this year's income tax forms in record time.

188 Oregonians Lose Drivers' Licenses Due To Drink Charges

Conviction of driving while intoxicated brought revocation of their drivers' licenses to 188 Oregonians in November, Secretary of State Earl T. Newbery reported today.
 An additional 64 licenses were suspended for offenses ranging from reckless driving to violation of the school bus stopping law. During the month a total of 2,819 convictions for moving traffic violations were added to individual driving records after being reported to courts concerned Newbery said.

Revocation of license is mandatory upon conviction of driving while intoxicated, but the number of such convictions is low in view of the frequency and gravity of offense, the secretary declared. Frequently a charge of driving while intoxicated is reduced to the lesser one of reckless driving, to which the offender will frequently plead guilty. Some jurisdictions accompany nearly every conviction with a recommendation for license reinstatement. Newbery pointed out that although his office need not accept such recommendations, it cannot investigate every case and must usually assume the request is justified.

Lack of uniformity in handling of traffic violations is annoying to the public and frequent by defects the efforts of officers who are conscientiously trying to enforce the law, he declared, adding that many traffic deaths every year are caused by drunken drivers who managed to keep their licenses despite long records of violation. He cited the case of a 22 year old driver whose license had been suspended twice and revoked twice, being restored each time on recommendation of the court. Despite this record, a third conviction of drunken driving was accompanied by another recommendation for reinstatement.
