OREGON SCHOOLS GROWING
The increase in public school enrollment is keeping up with Oregon's increase in population. This is an extraordinary condition in growing communities in the West. During the 1948-1949 school year enrollment was 272,864. State Superintendent Rex Putnam declares this is an increase of 12,000 over the previous year. Elementary school students accounted for 10,000 of the gain and high school students for 2000.
