How Janie helps herself to better service

- 1. "Allowing a little time between calls," says Janie, "gives others a chance to call me... and it's a nice party-line courtesy, too." So when she's getting the gang together for a picnic, or for any reason needs to make calls in a row, she waits several minutes between each one. "It's simple to make friends with others on our line. I just use the telephone the way I like them to."
- 2. Looking up numbers, Janie knows, is really important. "So easy to get them mixed up," she explains. "Why, I was just sure Babs' number was 8145... but when I called her I got the drug store. Turned out her number was 8415. So unless I'm really sure of a number, I'm going to look it up in the telephone book." That's a good tip for all of us—teen-agers and grown-ups.
- 3. Getting the most from the telephone—and helping others get better service—depends in part on every telephone user. Facilities have doubled in the West in ten years. Your telephone is today one of your most valuable servants... saving time, saving steps. And it still does its job for just a few pennies a call.

Here's one good deed that won't speak for itself!
You only need to have something like this happen to you once and you're ready to cut out paper dolls. Only I didn't cut this out... Mary Ann did. She's our little girl. Average guy that I am, I had our important papers all over the house... in the desk, a dresser drawer, even a couple in the family Bible. To Mary Ann this deed to our property was just pretty paper. It really taught me a lesson. Our valuables are in a safe place now... in a safe deposit box. Handy, too... all in one place, right where we do our banking, at the First National Bank.

A Standard Oiler works with $41,073 worth of tools
It has long been known that the better a man's tools, the more he can produce and earn.
The farmer with one plow and a horse cannot produce anywhere near as much as today's farmer with a gang plow and a tractor. And today's oilman is a far more efficient producer of good products than ever in history...because he is backed by a tremendous investment in tools.
Every one of the 29,970 employees of Standard of California and our subsidiary companies has behind him $41,073 worth of equipment. With it, he produces more and earns more than ever before—his average income last year was $4083.81 in wages.
It is our responsibility to keep his "kit of tools" in excellent shape and provide more if he needs them. To that end, $450,000,000 has been invested in new plants and facilities since the close of the war.
