

BLAME THE SPANIARDS FOR PESKY INSECTS

Blame the Spaniards for those pesky insects you'll be swatting and shooting this spring. The common housefly, says H. E. Morrison, OSC entomologist, was brought to this country by the Spanish explorers. The year, subject to some argument, was 1769. Meantime, screening and sticky paper control measures were first recommended by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in 1897. Still from the chronological standpoint, sanitation began to creep into the picture about 1915 and fly traps were becoming popular. Fly sprays contained pyrethrum in mineral oil were used principally as a repellent until 1926. In 1933-44, DDT became available, and fly control enthusiasm reached an all-time high. Now, the enthusiasm has been dampened more than somewhat. Difficultly with present fly control insecticides stems from the fact that flies are becoming increasingly resistant. Both DDT and Lindane, however, will give satisfactory short-time control during the early spring, cool months. They are not proving too satisfactory, however, when used in hot summertime temperatures. With DDT and some chlorinated residual type sprays becoming out-dated, what does the future hold? Morrison believes that space spraying—filling a room or building with small insecticidal particles—is likely to become popular.

THIEVE'S HIGHWAY

Richard Conte, Lee J. Cobb, Valentina Cortese, Jack Oakie, Barbara Lawrence, Millard Mitchell.

A hard-hitting, realistic action melodrama told against the novel backgrounds of the produce markets of California. Interesting short subjects: Freddie Slack and his Orchestra present their lively music, "Stars of Yesterday" in which stars of the silent screen appear . . . you'll chuckle at the old-school acting; Technicolor cartoon.

The Hiatt apartments, formerly the Jones apartments, Lanham Fair Dealers have changeable appetites. The returns were no sooner in, snowing under arch-Fair Dealer Pepper of Florida, than Democratic bigwigs announced that Mr. Truman never liked Pepper, anyway.

It may take a long time, but water finally reaches its true level. In venerable old Herbert Hoover's case it took 18 years for his former enemies to admit his stature. A few fair-minded Democrats will even concede—a fact—that Hoover's administration, not FDR's, created that economic life-saver, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Surveys show Democratic registrations leading Republicans by 8,000 votes in Oregon. So what? If there are 7,000 Jeffersonian Democrats among them, Truman's program will still have hard sledding in the nation's most "horse-sense" state.

FOR SALE—Lot 50x198; good new septic tank; garden and shrubs; concrete foundation. Very interesting. Turner, Van Marter & Co.
