4-H CLUB NEWS

Gene, who is a former 4-H member of many years ago, is farming the home ranch. He is enthused over this club, saying that anything he can do to help the 4-H program is worthwhile, as he has a family of boys and girls who someday will be 4-H members. He remembers the start he got in livestock through his club work, which now, though his interest was in Holstein dairy cows, has been converted to a small farm beef herd. Gene met with his club at the home of club member Jean Marie Graham on Sunday to complete a program of work for the coming year.
Peggy is enrolled in her fifth year of 4-H club work, and is carrying agricultural projects of sheep and beef with a home economics cooking project, too. She has in the past four years carried projects in both fat and breeding sheep and beef, cooking and knitting, proving that Peggy has interests in and has taken an active part in 4-H activities. As a result of her participation at county fairs and other 4-H events she has many first-place ribbons in sheep exhibits, taking first in sheep showmanship in her first year of club work. One of the first 4-H members to carry a registered sheep project, Peggy now has a sizeable flock of registered Hampshire. She has had the distinctions of exhibiting a first-place fleece at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition and winning the county award given by the Oregon Wool Growers Auxiliary for the outstanding sheep project. Peggy was President of the Willow Creek Chefs Cooking Club in 1950 and is secretary this year. She was Vice-President of the Junior Stockmen 4-H Club in 1950 and is news reporter in 1951. Mrs. N. C. Anderson and Gene Majeski are her present leaders with Vernon Munkers as leader in 1949 and 1950. She was first place winner in the Home Economics judging contest at the 1950 Morrow County Fair and Rodeo. Winning the Safeway Scholarship will provide her with her first trip to 4-H summer school at Oregon State College. Safeway Stores sponsor the 4-H Food Preservation and Preparation demonstration and the Dollar Dinner contests as well as the breeding project. The activities themselves are carried out cooperatively with the Agricultural Extension Service of Oregon State College.
