What's Doing In The Legislature

By REP. GILES FRENCH

Now they're betting on how long it will last. Once there was hope and this was years ago, that that the legislature would always be able to adjourn by Easter. For two sessions this was possible because Easter was late. This year Easter is early and there was no chance that aujournment would come before that date. Guesses are from late April to early May. Economy is still holding out well despite the battling of the spenders. The ways and means committee has just about put its collective foot down on a building program for which many tears have been sned. Now if the pers advisory committee. Reprebudget can be reduced a little sentatives of shippers, including and the tax intake increased a little there may be a reasonable balance after all-out this is optimistic. The 1949-51 budget the defense transportation ad-called for some 140 million; the ministrator, congress, ICC and 1951-53 budget for 180 million. The $11 million basic school increase and the veterans bonus account for some $15 million of the increase so the state officials are not all to blame.

If the new school bill could be handled someway and the veter-ans' bonus paid by a cigarette tax it might be possible (not probable) to cut the budget down to the income.

Actually, ofcourse, that has to eventually be done unless Ore-land and other ports. But no boxgon is to adopt deficit financing cars. and issuance of warrants as has Washington. sign up. The street committee reported that a tentative route for a new street had been viewed. An effort is being made to find a location that will in a measure meet the demands of the school district board, which body is seeking to have D street vacated. The route would start near the west end gate to the Rodeo grounds, cut across a corner of the Oscar George property and follow down the Hinton creek channel until Elder street is reached and there join K street. It would cut off about one-fourth of an acre of the school property. The school board feels this can not be permitted since the school property already is one and onehalf acres short of the acreage required by the state system. Speaking unofficially Edwin Dick said he was sure no concession could be made by the local board until the matter had been put up to the state board.

Councilman chairman W. C. Rosewall presided in the absence of Mayor J. O. Turner who was out of the city.

College Folk Re-live Campus Life At Alumni Reception

A goodly number of old grads, young grads, and former students assembled at the parish house of All Saints Episcopal church Sunday evening to mingle briefly with one another and meet some of the personnel of the Oregon State college band in town that evening for a concert at the school gymnasium. When introductions and visiting had been attended to, Jim Barratt manager of the band tour, introduced Forrest Gathercoal, tuba player in the band, who delighted his hearers with three brilliant numbers on the marimba. This was followed by the showing of a reel of the first half of the Oregon-Oregon State football game last fall and "stills" of scenes on the college campus. Ted Mesang, director of the band, and Mrs Mesang were introduced to the group and the director told of musical activities on the campus. Tea, coffee and cookies were served from a beautifully decorated table, the handiwork of Mrs. Claude Graham and Mrs. James Farley. Mrs. Farley had charge of the guest book and Mrs. Joseph Hughes was in charge of kitchen service, as well as general chairman of the affair.

The development of roaus in rural areas is therefore handicapped by the method of unstribution which is essentially on a pasis of population.

Ail this is merely an example of the inequities of any population method. Such a plan makes the cities bigger and the country smaller, thus continuing a centralization process that is a serious menace to the state-or to any government any place.

The reapportionment bills will probably be out next week and be debated, probably Monday. Whether rural Oregon will stick together in the face of pressures from strong groups or whether it will fall apart cannot be known until the roll is called. ## SOROPTIMISTS ENJOY TALK ABOUT PEOPLE

Art Linklater's "People Are Funny" radio program doesn't hold a candle to the everyday expieriences of the local hotel managers according to the report of Mrs. H. A. Sanders to the Soroptimist club of Heppner at the luncheon meeting this noon. The funny stories, the pettishness of some of the lady guests, arguments of the daily lobby "guests" and general frailties and idiosyncracies of the great American traveling public make a very amusing club program, but no doubt give the management a headache at the moment at least.

Mrs. Sanders enumerated a few of the many duties that are heaped upon the heads of the operators of a small hotel-- redecorating, plumbing, mending, sorting, buying linens, putting out fires, and the thousand and one other "little" details that make for the smooth running hotel.
