How to make good telephone service even better . . .

A tip you can give a talkative 'teen ager
Wonder how many people have been trying to call this telephone since Ann began doing her algebra lesson with a friend who lives just down the block. And, you know, incoming calls are often more important than the ones you make. This is just a suggestion, of course, but if you have a problem like this around your house, you might point out to your particular Ann that if she spaces her calls . . . and talks only as long as really necessary . . . she won't run the risk of missing a date because the boy who was trying to call could get nothing but a busy signal.

to speed service
on Long Distance calls, give the operator the information like this: First, the name of the town you're calling. Then the telephone number. (It's a good idea to keep a list of the out-of-town numbers you call.) Next, if it's a person call, give her the name of the one you want to reach. It will help her complete your call quicker.

Give the operator:
1 town you're calling
2 number you want
3 name (if call is for a specific person)
