A Plane Is Not a Plaything

Modern airplanes are safe so long as used for the purpose for which they are built. They are safe so long as the pilot keeps his head and follows the rules of flying.

The airplane is not any more a plaything than is an automobile, yet too many pilots and car drivers fail to recognize that fact until it is too late.

Car wrecks are so common that only the most disastrous of them break into the news columns any more. On the other hand, plane wrecks, because of their almost certain fatal nature, are recorded with regularity.

To those who enjoy riding in planes, in piloting their own planes, accidents such as the one which claimed the lives of two Morrow county residents Sunday evening should serve as a brake upon any ambitions to do stunt flying.

automobile. There is joy and comparative safety in rolling over the highways at a sensible speed—a speed that will not endanger the lives or limbs of the occupants if forced to take to the shoulder of the road.

All Streets Should Be Highways

It is to be hoped the State Highway Commission will not jump at conclusions if any of its members should by chance see the foregoing head line, for one is prompted by the work done to date on North Court street to wish that all of our streets could have the same type of treatment as that street-highway is receiving.

Several weeks may pass before the job is completed, but it can be seen from what has been done that a long-felt need has been filled. It remains for the hard surfacing to be laid before the job is finished and then the residents on either side of the thoroughfare will know they have been justified in helping finance and in enduring the inconveniences experienced in the earlier part of the work.

In an effort to secure better drainage through better graded streets, the city council two or three years ago set up a plan whereby the town could be divided into improvement districts. It was the council's idea that the city should assume a certain share of the improvements and the property within the districts the balance.

SEVEN VEGETABLE GARDEN BULLETINS AT COUNTY AGENT'S OFFICE Why not have fun, save money and "grow your own" vegetables this year? You'll never buy any that taste as good as those right out of your own garden, says R. Ralph Clark, OSC extension horticulture specialist, who recommends a "library" of seven trusty garden publications that are available from county extension offices. They may also be ordered directly from the college.

The seven bulletins, he adds, will provide "how to grow it" and question answering information for bulk of the puzzlers confronting home gardeners.

Title and a short description of each is as follows:

"Farm and Home Vegetable Garden," extension bulletin 614. This is one of the most popular numbers ever printed by OSC. It includes a planting calendar and gives variety recommendations for all common garden vegetables—41 altogether.

"Vegetable Garden Insect-Pest Control", extension bulletin 676. This 11-page publication describes common Oregon garden insects and tells how to get rid of them using insecticide materials.

"Booster and Starting Solutions for Vegetable Transplants" extension bulletin, 703, is another brief easy-to-read publication in three pages.
