Range Cattle Discussion Day Set Near Burns

Do Braham-Hereford cross-bred cattle have a place in sagebrush and bunchgrass range country is a question to be discussed during the field day Wednesday, August 29, at the Squaw Butte-Harney branch experiment station near Burns, W. A. Sawyer, station superintendent, has announced.

With the program slated to get underway at 10:30 in the morning, Roscoe E. Bell, Portland, bureau of land management regional administrator, will be guest speaker.

The field day program will deal with range improvement work underway at the station as well as range livestock investigations being carried on. Visitors will see a comparison of old versus new hay for wintering breedmore or less, for the minimum price of $240.00 cash.

THEREFORE, I will on the 22nd day of September, 1951 at the hour of 10:00 A.M., at the front door of the Court House in Heppner, Oregon sell said property to the highest and best bidder.

ing cows, and results of a test to determine if it is practical to feed protein supplement to breeding cows on sagebrush-bunchgrass range.

Sawyer says field day visitors should bring individual lunches and coffee cup and spoon. Coffee will be provided.

The station's livestock program will be discussed during the morning hours. The afternoon will be devoted to the range improvement trials. Sagebrush control using both chemicals and machinery will be shown and a sage removal demonstration using the Roto-beater will be staged.

This is the first field day that has been held at the Squaw Butte-Harney branch of the Oregon State college experiment station since the beginning of World War II, Sawyer states. The station is located 43 miles west of Burns on highway 20.

In range reseeding work, Sawyer plans to discuss the place of crested wheatgrass in range improvement and will show planting methods. This grass, he explains, is generally considered the best planting recommendation for range improvement in areas with less than 12 inches of annual rainfall.

Mrs. Ambrose Chapin has returned from Portland where she spent several days visiting relatives.
