Many ranchers are asking the question these days, can we spray for lice and grubs with one application? The answer is yes, but there are several things that must be kept in mind. First, ro-

Born 500 Years Too Soon

THIS YEAR, all over the civilized world, the 500th anniversary of the birth of the great artist-scientist Leonardo da Vinci will be celebrated. These are but two of the many inventions that came newly-minted from Leonardo's mind just about the time Columbus tripped over America on his way to the Indies. These first known examples of a mechanically-driven vehicle and the airplane are only a small fraction of the work of this inventive genius who, in addition to painting such masterpieces as the "Mona Lisa" and "The Last Supper," foreshadowed many of today's devices in his mechanical studies. Why, he even invented a jack as if in anticipation of the trouble we'd run into with our present-day development of his original automobile.

Models of Leonardo's inventions, including such diverse items as a triple-tier machine gun and an air conditioner, are now on tour throughout the United States, being displayed in the offices of the International Business Machines Corp., owners of the models, in a wide public preview of the exhibitions to be held in museums during the anniversary year of 1952.

The flyer of Leonardo's plane, his feet in leather stirrups connected by pulleys to the wings, moved his feet up and down to flap the wings. The machine was raised and propelled through the air by the arm-operated windlass. It was no jet-job, but the theory behind it was scientific as was all of Leonardo's work. Lack of a convenient power supply was probably the cause of the plane's crash, the first since the boy whose wax wings melted when he flew too close to the sun.

tonone is the only insecticide which will kill grubs. Second, if only rotonone is used for both lice and grub control, a second spraying is necessary in twelve to fourteen days. With DDT one spraying will kill all lice, with no need to spray again until fall.

In mixing the two for lice and grub control, regular applications should be made. This is 12 pounds 50% wettable DDT, and 7½ pounds 5% rotonone per 100 gallons of water. It will take approximately two gallons of water per cow.

Backs should be thoroughly wetted for grub control, with the whole animal sprayed for lice. A spraying with 7½ pounds 5% rotonone, wetting the backs thoroughly should be made 30-45 days later. This is for the second batch of grubs.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bauman returned Saturday from Salt Lake City, Utah.
