Grapefruit Juice Makes Slimming Salad Dressing

These spring days are just the time to indulge in sensible tonics as part of your meals—tonics such as salads made with juicy Florida citrus fruits right now at their best. They help cut calories and fit into diets perfectly. For the final finishing touch, still in the diet direction, add a dressing made of Florida grapefruit juice. The salad shown here is grapefruit sections and cottage cheese on a bed of crisp greens. The dressing is so good you'll keep the jar handy for use on mixed greens, vegetables, and all types of fruit salads. And because so little oil is used, 1 tablespoon of this dressing will cost you only 25 calories as compared to the 80 or 100 found in a serving of the average French dressing!

Florida Low-Calorie French Dressing

1 cup Florida grapefruit juice	1/2 teaspoon paprika
2 teaspoons cornstarch	1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons salad oil	1/4 teaspoon Tabasco
1/4 teaspoon salt	1/4 cup catchup
1 teaspoon sugar	1 peeled clove garlic (optional)

Blend 1/2 cup of the grapefruit juice and cornstarch. Cook over low heat stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Remove from heat; add remaining 1/2 cup grapefruit juice. Measure into small mixing bowl remaining ingredients; add cornstarch mixture and beat with rotary beater until smooth. Store covered in refrigerator. Shake before using. YIELD: 1 1/4 cups.
