Our Education Problem

The new advisory committee which was recently asked by the board of school district No. 1 to aid in working out an acceptable plan of new school construction faces a problem which will take considerable effort and conscientious thought to solve. Any school building program is a serious problem, but the fact that Heppner's is long overdue makes it even tougher.

the school system as well as an overall program which will be workable for years to come. The committee members are not experts on school matters, but one of their biggest jobs will be to provide the board with "an outsiders" view of what is needed to bring the Heppner educational plant and system up to standard. There are a lot of problems to be faced—problems that the three-man school board has been trying to out-wrestle for some time. It's a safe bet that if the committee members don't know much about school operation now, they will before they get through. They, and the board, are going to need the help of the general public too, in finding many of the answers—particularly in the matter of "how much." Just criticism alone, will only make their jobs harder, but they will welcome anyone's suggestion as to what facilities are needed and are wanted by the parents of the children who will use them.

Many questions are being asked these days relative to the spray mixtures for annual weed control. With the cold, dry weather, many farmers are going to be disappointed with results, especially in control of tar weed unless they increase amounts over applications which gave good control when weather conditions were ideal. Two pints of 2.4-D per acre is essential if tar weed is to be effectively controlled this year. A mixture of one third 2.4.5-T and two thirds 2.4-D of 3.30 acid equivalent per gallon, used at the rate of one and one-half pints per acre is equal to two pints of 2.4-D per acre in the control of tar weed. When making this mixture it is important to keep in mind that the 2.4-D and 2.4.5-T should both be of the ester form and that the acid equivalent per gallon is considered.

this spring there will be many disappointed farmers in Morrow County.

A good sized double handful of fertilizer is approximately one pound. The home gardener can use this measure rather than a scale in making applications of Commercial fertilizer to lawns and gardens.

More on seed certification seems to be in order. Land requirements are an important part of seed certification. Before buying and planting high priced seedstock, growers should make sure the land on which they intend to plant is eligible for certification. Certification rules include restrictions on field history to prevent contamination by volunteer planting from previous crops. To avoid crop mixtures a certified field must not have grown a different variety of the certified crop for one or more years.

One of the best ways to produce clean seed is to begin with a clean field. Most legume seed crops are inspected in the seedling stage for certification in Oregon. The main reasons for this seedling inspection are to check for volunteer plants of the crop to be grown for certification. To avoid expensive mistakes, we suggest growers study the certification rules carefully. Complete rules for certification are on file in the county extension agent's office.
