New OSC Soil And Water Resources Bulletin Ready

A program in which research and extension can assist Oregon residents to make still further progress in conservation and use of land and water resources is outlined in a new Oregon State college extension bulletin, number 725, entitled, "Soil and Water Conservation and Use in Oregon", now ready for distribution.

Copies may be obtained from the county extension office or directly from OSC.

The 22-page circular, almost entirely a graphic presentation, is a summary of work done by ten OSC school of agriculture staff members. The primary objectives of the program outlined as a result of their work are; one, to solve the man-made problems of erosion and water run-off; and two, to develop the most effective use of soil and water resources for the welfare of the people.

Discussing significant features, major problems and land use, the circular outlines the state in five areas. They are the coastal, southern Oregon, the Willamette valley, the Columbia basin, and the remainder of eastern Oregon.

In terms of an action program, the circular suggests making soil surveys on all land on which there may be a choice with regards to use.

Discussing erosion problems, the circular proposes a six-point action program. It would include development of good rotations on eastern Oregon wheatlands; conversion of steeper slopes from grains and row crops to permanent pastures; further study of tillage methods including strip cropping for row crops of all kinds as well as grain; use of sprinkler irrigation on row crops and orchards growing on steep lands; clearing of undesirable brush by mechanical or chemical methods instead of by fire in western Oregon; and reseeded logged and burned over areas to trees or grass.

In the area section of the circular, land use changes are proposed such as clearing woodland or returning plowland to grass or

COOKING II
April 5 Cooking 2 met at the home of Mrs. Howton. Judy and Janet Howton gave demonstrations on how to make cream puffs and omelette. Our next meeting will be decided later.

April 30 the Cooking 2 met in the school lunch room. We talked on how to make a tea successful. We talked on what we are going to have at our Mother's tea. We haven't decided what to have, nor when we are going to have it.

Sue Coleman, News Reporter.

What makes Olympia so popular?

Light Olympia, like the beers of Munich and Burton-on-Trent, is famous for quality . . . and largely for the same reason . . . "It's the Water."

Premium quality hops, grains and yeast are used.

Final touch of perfection is the skillful brewing gained through three generations of brewing experience.
