Supply of Farm Needs Reported Generally Good

Here's a thumbnail report of farm supplies availability this spring was reported by M. G. Huber, Oregon State College extension agricultural specialist.

Barbed wire: Supplies are improving and by the third and fourth quarters of the year, stocks will have shown decided improvement. The current deficit is based on the steel shortage, lack of zinc for coating, and heavy military purchases.

Woven wire: Shortages will be less in evidence as the year rolls along.

Bale ties and coil wire: Huber thinks it is advisable for farmers to appraise their needs and place their orders early. Local shortages may develop but the national picture is good.

Welding rods and other farm shop supplies: Although production is high, construction outlets form a heavy drain. Demand has increased and supplies to repairmen including those serving farmers is tight.

Metal roofing: It has been in short supply, but there are prospects for an increasing supply of zinc and galvanized steel products. Thus, the shortage will gradually be eased. Similarly, increasing aluminum production is resulting in a gradual improvement in the supply of aluminum roofing.

Cement: Nationally, adequate supplies are on hand with production expected to increase materially in 1952 as compared with a year ago.

Nails: Spot shortages may occur, but for the country over, supplies are expected to meet demands.

Tires and rubbers: Controls over the consumption of rubber have been relaxed considerably during the past few months. The over-all situation appears reasonably good for the types of tires which farmers normally buy. Water well casing and galvan-
