

Selective Service Clarifies Regulations

Oregon State Headquarters, Selective Service System, today called attention to the fact that many registrants appeared to have a misunderstanding as to when the advent of a child becomes a change in marital status and should be reported.

"It seems that most registrants have the idea that the change of marital status," said Col. Francis W. Mason, Deputy State Director, "doesn't occur, or need to be reported, until a child is born. In reality this change of marital status is effective as soon as it is definitely established that the registrant's wife is pregnant."

Col. Mason went on to explain that Selective Service Regulations do not permit a Local Board to grant a 3-A classification if the registrant reports the pregnancy of his wife or the actual birth of a child for whom he is maintaining a home after the issue of his Order to Report for Induction.

"It is evident therefore," concluded Col. Mason, "that as soon as a reliable physician can certify that a registrant's wife is pregnant he should immediately file such certificate with his Local Board. If he waits and in the meantime his Order to Report for Induction is issued, the Local Board is not permitted to grant a deferment on the grounds of dependency."

Prospects Bright For Improvement Of Oregon Ranges

Glimpses of possible future developments on the ranges of eastern Oregon were shown at the annual field day of the Squaw Butte-Harney range and livestock experiment station recently.

Success with sagebrush spraying and seeding of crested wheatgrass for range improvement was reported. Preliminary results of fertilizer experiments on native meadow caught the eye of many field day visitors.

Donald Hyder, range conservationist, indicated that chemical spraying of big sagebrush to reduce competition and improve forage production may be the key to tremendous future development of the vast eastern Oregon ranges. Hyder announced successful attempts to kill sagebrush with 2,4-D sprays. An 86 percent kill was reported using an oil emulsion of butyl ester of 2,4-D in May. Water emulsion of the same chemical gave 84 percent kill.

Another avenue for range improvement was pointed up by demonstrations of successful seeding of crested wheatgrass on land cleared of sagebrush. Experiments have shown that heavy rollers can be used effectively to get higher germination and survival in dry land seedings. Both drilled and broadcast seedings were improved by rolling. Best results came with rolling before drilling and after broadcasting.

Early results of fertilizer tests on native meadows have inspired hope for much greater hay production. Cleo S. Cooper, agronomist for the station, reported that yield of dry forage was increased from 14 tons an acre to more than 3 tons an acre by applying ammo-phos fertilizer at various rates up to 500 pounds an acre. Quality of hay was also improved by fertilization, he declared.

Beef cattle research, including comparison tests of Brahman-Herford crossbred cattle and Hereford cattle, also was reported at the field day.
