By Delpha Jones

WALK SAFELY

Are you a chip-on-the-shoulder pedestrian—challenging automobiles to the right-of-way? Take a look at yourself! How would you like to "weigh in" for a combat with a car, asks the AAA driver training book, "Sportsmanlike Driving." Cars clearly have the edge over pedestrians—in size, weight, strength, and hardness of material. Flesh, blood, and bones must "throw in the towel" long before steel, glass, and chromium.

A driver in his car is practically encased in armor. So there's every sportsmanlike reason why he should show courtesy to the weaker pedestrian. But if a driver fails to show that courtesy, pedestrians with good sense keep out of his way. What chance has a 150-pound pedestrian, walking at 3 or 4 miles per hour, against a 3,000-pound car at even the low speed of 20 miles per hour? The law gives pedestrians the right-of-way. Common sense often takes it away from them. When car and pedestrian collide, it is the pedestrian who is taken to the ambulance!

The town of Lexington was excited a bit Monday afternoon when a large black smoke appeared on the horizon. Many cars started to find the cause and it was found to be a stubble and wheat fire at the M. V. Nolan ranch. However, after much help by those going out the fire was soon squelched after burning only a few acres of wheat and the rest stubble. Their farming equipment had to be moved but there no further damage than the wheat. Quite a number of citizens went to the aid of Mr. Nolan.
