Mrs. Lula Settle, Mrs. Georgia May Settle and infant son drove to Heppner Saturday for medical check ups.

Increasing costs and financial losses over the past two years, combined with lack of space, has forced the discontinuance, according to Dr. W. B. Bollen, OSC bacteriologist.

Although the basic inoculating service will not be provided, OSC will cooperate in preparing inoculants for unusual legumes which require special strains of bacteria not available elsewhere. Dr. Bollen explained.

Inoculation of leguminous crops is always desirable and in many cases is essential for maximum quality and yield. Commercial inoculants are now recommended by OSC bacteriologists. They are available at most seed dealers.

On July 31 the department had mailed 80,000 bonus checks to World War II veterans aggregating $33,000,000. So far the checks have averaged around $410. Checks to dependents are running higher.

FACTORY WAGES HIGHER The average weekly earnings of Oregon's industrial workers rose this month to a record high of $80.80, according to this week's statement of the Oregon Unemployment Compensation Commission. The average hourly wage remained virtually the same as it has been for several months, but the average work week increased from 38.1 hours in May to 39.6 in June. The new record is accounted for by the increase in working hours.

The highest industry record was made by construction workers with $92.84 in a 39-hour week. Lumbering, typographical, paper mill, furniture, textile and other skilled workers were increasing their earnings, while declines were shown in the unskilled classifications, which include food processing.

OSC Discontinues Sale of Inoculants

A farm service provided by Oregon State College for nearly 40 years has been discontinued this summer with the announcement by the OSC bacteriology department that it will no longer sell legume inoculating bacteria.
