Two Taxes We Like

We are no more inclined to favor additional taxes than is the average resident of the county, but there are two such measures on the November ballot that we feel are worthy of general support. They are the two county measures to continue the 10 mill road levy for an additional five years and the 5 mill levy for the construction of an additional wing on the Pioneer Memorial hospital.

If the county court is to continue with its program of oiling and graveling county roads, the special road levy is a necessity. All of the road betterment which has been completed during the past several years has been made possible by this money and the proposed tax is a continuation of the present levy which was voted four years ago, and will expire next June 30. The court has done a good job with its road program, but it is not finished. To complete it, it will take the money derived from the extension of this levy. Good roads are equally important to farmers and city residents for each must do business with the other, and good year-around county roads are the lifelines of every town's potential market.

One visit to Pioneer Memorial hospital on practically any day during recent weeks would convince the most sceptical why the additional bedroom wing is needed. Patients weren't quite sleeping two to a bed, but the next thing to it, it has been, on numerous occasions, operating at better than 100% of capacity.

The additional wing, planned to house 15 more hospital beds, and several added rooms on the lower floor for welfare and nursing patients, will be relatively inexpensive, as hospital construction goes. The main plant—the surgeries, technical facilities, heating plant, kitchen etc., were designed originally to handle an additional wing of bedrooms. This type of construction and equipment costs little in comparison to the added income the hospital can receive from it, and very little additional help can tend to the needs of another 15 patients. It is entirely possible that the extra income will eventually make possible the entire elimination of the $1,000 per month now budgeted by the county for hospital improvements. In other words, it will be operating on a completely paying basis. If that can be done, the $12,000 annual saving to taxpayers will soon pay back the $70,000 the proposed 5 mill, one year levy will cost them.

Residents of the north end of the county, who are farther away from the hospital's facilities are understandably less interested in the hospital than are local residents, yet it is not all give and no take for them either. The combination of facilities for the care of regular patients and welfare patients by one staff and in one building materially cuts the cost of taking care of those on the county rolls. If separate facilities were required, the cost per patient would be much higher, and the proposed addition will provide much needed room for the care and treatment of these persons.

Both measures appear to us as completely justified and well worthy of a "Yes" vote at the polls.

County Agent News

By N. C. Anderson

With sprinkler irrigation becoming so popular in Morrow County, many thousands of dollars have been spent on sprinkler equipment.

With so many dollars invested in this equipment, thought should be given to what can be done to lengthen the life of this investment. Proper care and storage during the winter months should be the concern of all at this time of year. This extra care will not only save money, but put the equipment in readiness for operation next spring.

Gather up the sprinkler pipe and stack it in racks indoors if possible. In case the pipe is stacked outdoors one end of the stack with a cleat on the top edge can be used as a separator between rows.

Remove couplings and sprinkler heads and store indoors. Clean and paint rust spots on galvanized couplings. Remove and inspect rubber gaskets and clean valve gasket seats. Replace worn fiber gaskets in sprinkler head. Store pumps in a dry place. Dry out interior and oil. Crank case oil is good enough.

Store electric motors in a dry place. In gasoline motors, gas tanks should be drained and the carburetors run dry. Change oil while oil is still hot. Remove spark plugs; squirt a few teaspoonsful of oil into each cylinder, rotate a few times and replace spark plugs. Take specific precautions that the magnets will be free from moisture.

If these few simple recommendations are followed, the life of your sprinkler irrigation equipment will be increased many years and will be ready for care-free service when spring rolls around.

Bring Retail Prices Down... Keep Farm Prices Up

VOTE 332 YES ON THE MILK PRODUCTION AND MARKETING ACT NOV. 4
These important Oregon organizations tell you why
If you are confused by conflicting claims about milk laws, be guided by the counsel of those who have made thorough and impartial studies of the question.
The Milk Production and Marketing Act was put on the ballot by the Affiliated Milk Committees of Oregon, which is composed of citizen groups all over the state. We have no connection with the milk industry and our only interest is in securing a milk law which will be fair to everybody.
We were guided by the views of representative Oregon organizations—labor, consumers, retailers, farmers, civic groups.

TO WAGE EARNERS
Labor groups say VOTE 332 YES
The last state convention of the CIO said, "We feel the Milk Production and Marketing Act gives the necessary protection to the producer . . . and makes better milk available at more reasonable prices to the consumer."
—Oregon State Industrial Union Council (CIO)

TO CONSUMERS
Women's groups say Vote 332 YES
Says the Portland Federation of Women's Organizations, representing 72 clubs, with 16,000 members: "Thousands of Oregon families have growing children and limited budgets. A vote of 332 YES will enable these families to afford more wholesome fresh milk."
—Portland Federation of Women's Organizations

TO FARMERS
Dairymen say Vote 332 YES
W. A. Johnson, Grants Pass dairyman and President of the Oregon Producer Distributors Association says, "Milk Control has consistently lowered the butterfat content of the milk we sell while increasing justify special treatment. We have found insufficient justification for controlling fluid milk prices at resale level."
—Portland City Club

TO MERCHANTS
Food stores say Vote 332 YES
The Oregon Food Merchants Association, representing the independent grocers of Oregon, in its endorsement of the Milk Production and Marketing Act says, "The association reiterates its desire for store differential which it feels the present law does not permit."
—Oregon Food Merchants Association

TO VOTERS
332 YES agrees with views of political groups of both parties
This new FAIR milk bill will conform with the last formal platform position of the Democratic party in Oregon which said "eliminate all provisions of the milk control law except sanitation regulations and minimum price for farmers."
—Oregon State Democratic Party
On September 14, the state policy meeting of the Young Republican Federation of Oregon said "whereas the proposed Milk Marketing Act 332 YES which has been placed on the ballot by the signatures of 43,000 citizens is eminently fair to the farmer and the consumer . . . we the majority of the agricultural committee of this convention urge its adoption."
—Young Republican Fed. of Ore.

TO BUSINESS MEN
Business and professional leaders in Portland City Club carefully studied milk control
This nonpartisan group of over 1,000 citizens after studying the present Milk Control Law, reported as follows: "Although considerable argument was presented by various witnesses regarding the necessity of continuing price control at the distributor level, the majority of the committee did not find the distribution and sale of fluid milk sufficiently unlike the marketing of other food products to

Remember when you go to the polls Nov. 4th look for the Milk Production and Marketing Act
