Ground Beef and Green Beans In A Zesty Combination

Ground beef shows up on menus in lots of ways, but none more interesting or appetizing than in a new beef, green bean and rice combination called Beef Pattie Ring Around. Easy-to-use canned foods are the key to this easy and economical dish. Canned evaporated milk helps extend the meat, and tomato soup is used in the sauce which gives the canned green beans that extra zip.

Beef Pattie Ring Around 1 pound ground beef 2 tablespoons shortening 1/2 cup evaporated milk 1 1-pound can green beans 1/2 cup rolled oats 1/4 cup liquid from beans 1/2 cup finely chopped onion, divided 1 can condensed tomato soup 1 2 teaspoons salt, divided 2 teaspoons vinegar 1/4 teaspoon pepper, divided 2 cups hot cooked rice

To ground beef add evaporated milk, rolled oats, half of the onion, 1 teaspoon of the salt and half of the pepper; mix well. With wet hands shape meat mixture into 8 flat patties. Brown patties in hot fat in frying pan. Drain 1/2 cup liquid from beans; add to soup with vinegar, remaining onion, salt and pepper; pour over patties. Cover and cook over very low heat 30 minutes. Remove patties to warm platter. Add green beans to sauce in skillet and heat beans to serving temperature. Arrange rice in a ring around patties. Place green bean mixture around rice ring. YIELD: 4 servings.

Dairy Association Plans Annual Meet Milk production and marketing will be examined by key men of the industry at the fifty-ninth annual meeting of Oregon Dairy-men's association at Oregon State college, January 13 and 14. R. W. Morse, OSC dairy specialist and secretary of the association, says representatives of dairy products processors and retail outlets will discuss current problems in Oregon's shifting dairy picture. This will include price of milk and butterfat content which have come in for much public discussion recently. Also of special interest will be the state's declining number of dairy cows which threatened the state with becoming a deficit dairy products area. R. S. Waltz Seattle, manager of the Consolidated Dairy Products company, will discuss substitute dairy products at the first day morning session. S. Eugene Allen, Secretary-manager of the Oregon restaurant association, Portland, will examine the relationship between the dairymen and restaurants and public relations at the second morning meeting. E. Wayne Laird, chairman of the milk marketing committee of the Oregon Independent Grocers association, will discuss milk marketing. Also scheduled for the second day is a group discussion of disease control, production testing, artificial breeding and marketing and production. Election activities of the Oregon milk producers committee will be presented to the conference. The conference will close with a report of resolutions and election of officers and directors. All meetings will be held in Withycombe hall.
