The Oregon State Game Commission will hold its first public hearing for the purpose of setting the 1953 hunting regulations on July 10 at 10:00 a. m. in Portland.

All parties with suggestions for regulations regarding seasons, bag limits, or method of taking the game birds, game animals or fur-bearers of the state are invited to attend. It is requested that all important facts and information be submitted to the commissioners in writing.

Tentative regulations will be set after the hearing and the commission will convene on Friday, July 24, to set the final 1953 hunting regulations. Game commission headquarters are at S. W. 17th ave. and Alder st. in Portland.

Winter Wheat Seeding May Check Erosion

A new soil tillage practice under trial by the Oregon State College agricultural experiment station may be part of the answer to checking erosion from snow run-off in the Columbia Basin.

A rough-tilled winter wheat seeded, following peas, at the OSC Pendleton branch experiment station's pilot farm near Weston holds the answer to whether high wheat production can be maintained on soil that is left "pocketed" and rough-ridged to resist erosion.

Merrill Oveson, superintendent, says the station is waiting to check what now appears to be a head-and-head race between wheat yields on test plots of rough and fine-tilled seedings.

The practice is also labor saving. T. R. Horning, station agricultural engineer, and Warr Waddoups, station crops research assistant, say rough tillage cuts out two operations normally followed in preparing a fine-tilled winter wheat seedbed.

The station seeded winter wheat, October 27, in rough-plowed pea land without additional tilling or seedbed preparation. Clods varying in size from one to two feet were left.

Elmar wheat looks just as good now, says Oveson, as it does on a similar seedbed that was spring-toothed twice and worked once with a culti-hoe. Both plots were fertilized and seeded at the same rate—75 pounds of seed to the acre.

Speed Season Arrives, Police Start Lookout

What's the hurry? That's a question Oregon police officers will be asking many drivers during the weeks ahead as the speed season arrives on Oregon highways.

Such questioning, according to the traffic safety division, usually brings a feeble excuse from the driver and an attempt to talk his way out of a traffic ticket. The safety division, however, guns officers will "stick by their guns" this summer.

Traffic deaths are on the increase, nearly 160 reported by mid-June, and drivers who exceed reasonable speeds play an important part in adding to the toll. Speed, alone, does not kill; it takes another driving error coupled with a driver who "overdrives his ability" to produce an accident. But when that error occurs, chances of death rapidly increase, the division says.

Safety officials pointed out that 116 of the drivers involved in fatal smash-ups last year were driving at excessive speeds. They added that an accident at 60 miles an hour is eight times more likely to produce a fatality than one at 20 miles an hour. While the division does not recommend driving at 20 miles an hour, it does suggest that in heavy traffic speed should be kept within reason.

CHARGES DISMISSED

In the first jury trial in city recorder's court in many years, Matthew Hughes, Heppner, was found not guilty, last Saturday of a loitering after hours charge. He had pleaded not guilty.

Hughes was defended by Ralph Curran, Pendleton attorney and city attorney J. J. Nys represented the city.

NATIONAL PRESS BUILDING WASHINGTON, D. C. By Anne Gould

Sheer, sheer 12-denier nylons are making stocking fashion news. Gossamer-like you can hardly see them, yet they're as closely knit as some of the heavier ones. You'll love them for spring and summer sandal-type shoes.

This time of year broiled chicken, fresh spring peas and little new potatoes are at their best. My favorite way to prepare the chicken is to brush it generously and frequently while broiling with this mixture: Melt three tablespoons vitaminized margarine, add juice of 1/2 lemon and 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley, salt and pepper.

Try caper mayonnaise on your next salmon salad. Gives a Sunday-special flavor you'll like. Here's how: Add 2 tablespoons of the juice in the caper bottle to a cup of real mayonnaise. Mix mayonnaise with flaked salmon and other salad ingredients. Serve additional caper mayonnaise over salad and garnish with capers.

Looking ahead to vacation time, as you collect new summer frocks remember that light weight, easy-to-care for fabrics such as the synthetics, pure silk, jersey and sheer wools are easiest to travel with. Two basic colors with a third for accent simplify the number of accessories needed.

Yellow will be a very popular color this summer. And it's just possible that you have a last year's frock in a light pastel that can be stripped of its color with a good color remover then converted into a sunny, fresh yellow with an all-purpose dye that works on all types of fabrics.

Gardeners On Spot With Late Season; Must Work Rapidly

The late growing season has put Oregon home gardeners in a spot where they must now work fast and do everything right the first time, says Ralph Clark, Oregon State college extension horticulturist.

Time has run out for eastern Oregon greenthumbers to add to their vegetable gardens. However, lettuce, spinach and turnips are still good bets for the late season.

Prospects are somewhat better in western Oregon. Transplants of late celery, late cabbage, Brussels sprouts, broccoli and cauliflower should mature during the fall months.

The specialist recommends planting thin enough so plants don't crowd and to handle plants carefully to avoid root injury. Water immediately after planting with a booster solution of 16-20 or 11-48 ammo-phos to one gallon of water.

Western Oregon gardeners can still expect good results with seedings of beets, late beans and sweet corn, carrots and lettuce. Treat seeds against fungus, cover them lightly and keep weeds under control, advises Clark. He adds that weed-control cultivation should not be so deep that it endangers feeder roots.

Irrigation can save the day for late-seeded vegetables if properly used. One to three inches of water, or enough to give a consistent supply of moisture in the soil around the root system, is recommended for crops that are developing well.

The only convertible that outsells Ford!

WHAT IS IT that makes Ford's Sunliner America's best seller? Is it its high-compression V-8 power? (No other convertible in Ford's field has this kind of engine.) Is it the fine craftsmanship of its Crestmark Body? (No body in its field can match Ford's choice of exterior and interior color combinations.) Is it its new spring and shock absorber action which makes even roughest roads feel smooth? (The Sunliner's springs are tailored to its weight.) Is it the choice of Fordomatic, Overdrive or Conventional you get? (You won't find such a choice in any other car in Ford's field.)

No, it's not just any one of these things that make Ford America's largest-selling convertible. It's all 41 of Ford's "Worth More" features... features which folks know make Ford worth more when they buy it, worth more when they sell it.
