Now You Can Diet and Eat Dessert Too!

Here is pleasure without pounds, a meal which brims with flavor and yet is amazingly low in calories! The broiled chicken is savory in a sweet and pungent sauce. The green peas, prepared with a touch of basil, are tender and sweet. The salad of tart, juicy grapefruit sections on crisp greens provides the proper amount of flavor contrast. Bread sticks allow for crunchy nibbling. You can enjoy all this and still have dessert—a smooth chocolate pudding, perfect—because there are only 500 calories in this delicious meal. Skip the bread sticks and there are just 400!

The secret to such fine eating on a diet is this: Both the sweet and pungent sauce and the dessert were prepared with a new liquid concentrated sweetener, Sweeta, that contains not a single calorie. Just introduced as an aid to the millions of Americans with weight problems, this dieter's delight comes in a convenient squeeze-a-drop bottle. One drop equals one-half teaspoon of sugar; one-fourth teaspoon, as in dessert recipe below, equals one-half cup of sugar.

Chocolate Pudding

3 tablespoons cornstarch 2 cups skim milk
3 tablespoons cocoa 1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon Sweeta

Mix cornstarch, cocoa and salt with 1/4 cup of milk until smooth. Meanwhile scald the remaining milk in double boiler. Pour a little of the scalded milk into the cornstarch mixture and blend smooth. Stir this slowly into remaining scalded milk, then cook, stirring constantly, until the pudding is thick and smooth. Cover the double boiler and cook 20 minutes. Stir occasionally. Cool slightly, then add Sweeta and vanilla, stirring in well. Cover and allow pudding to chill. Arrange with white topping in sherbet or parfait glasses.

White Topping

1/2 cup cold water 1/4 Dash almond extract
1 tablespoon lemon juice 1/4 teaspoon Sweeta
1/2 cup nonfat dry milk solids

Place water in bowl. Add lemon juice, Sweeta, almond extract and milk solids. Beat with rotary beater or electric mixer until thick as marshmallow fluff. This topping will stay light and fluffy for about 30 minutes.

the end off. After a two day lay-off Steve is back at work.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Hinton, who both recently had surgery in Portland, are still at the home of Mr. Hinton's sister, Ella. Mrs. Lydia Capon is teaching the primary room in Mrs. Hinton's absence.

George and Dilla Mantis were business visitors in Heppner last Thursday. Mrs. Helen Brown cared for the Post Office during their absence.

Oaris Stubblefield was very ill at his home on Thursday and Friday.

Feed Suggestions For Sows, Gilts Outlined by OSC

Oregon hog raisers would improve their chances of raising profitable producers if they would feed a balanced ration to their sows or gilts during gestation, says John Landers, extension animal husbandry specialist at Oregon State college.

Proper feeding of pregnant sows and gilts, although not the only factor involved, will help in producing heavier pigs at birth and increasing their chances of survival, the specialist explains. Pigs weighing from 3 to 4 pounds at birth will have the heaviest weaning weight.

Landers says the value of a brood sow is based on the number of strong pigs raised so selection from good ancestry is important. If sows come from good stock and are healthy, proper feeding will have a greater influence on the litter produced.

Gilts will need enough feed to cover both growth and developed litter requirements, points out the specialist. In general, gilts should be expected to gain 100 to 125 pounds during gestation. Sows in good condition when bred should gain 75 to 100 pounds.

A balanced ration could include: 50 pounds ground barley or wheat; 22 pounds ground oats; 20 pounds good quality alfalfa hay; 4 pounds tankage or meat scraps; 1 pound soybean oil; one-half pound iodized salt; and one-half pound bonemeal.

For other recommended self-feeding and hand-feeding rations, Landers suggests growers check at county extension office.

White Muscle Disease Reports Asked by OSC

Oregon State college is on the lookout for symptoms of white muscle disease in lambs and calves which takes its toll in the months following winter calving and lambing. The disease often results in death through severe heart injury and may show symptoms any time after birth up to six months.

Ranchers can aid in the college research program by notifying the county veterinarian or county agent immediately of suspected cases. The disease strikes suddenly, moves rapidly and frequently results in death within a few hours. In these extreme cases, animals are dull and suffer respiratory distress. A bloody foam is frequently discharged from the nose and mouth at time of death. Animals with less severe cases, move with difficulty and may die suddenly or recover.

Some animals are still born with severe heart lesions, although symptoms are most frequently seen in lambs at about two to three weeks of age and in calves, especially beef type, from four to six weeks.
