

AS GOOD AS THE BEAVERS, NOW—

MUSTANGS WIN GAME!

Heppner Wins First Game, Takes Arlington 10-0

After a dearth of baseball victories which has run into years, the Heppner high school Mustangs finally won a game last Friday, and they did it with a vengeance. They shut out the Arlington Honkers to the tune of 10 to 0.

The long period without any wins isn't quite as bad as it might appear on the surface, though, for the school hasn't had a baseball team for several years. Until last year, the sport having been dropped from the curriculum about five years ago. The squad did, however, go through all last season without a win, but it was the first time that many of the boys had played organized baseball. They lost one earlier game this season to Fossil.

The Arlington contest started slow with neither team doing much in the first inning. Jerry Hagwood supplied the initial run in the second inning and then the team's steady scorer, Lyle Jensen and Ed Olson, tapped out two more singles for tally in that period.

Heppner went into a slump for two more stanzas until Terry Thompson slugged a single in the fifth that started a rally that Arlington couldn't halt until Olson, Jensen, Jerry Dougherty and Jim Hayes had all pounded out scoring hits. In the final inning Hagwood and Jensen each tallied one more run.

Bill Hughes pitched the entire game striking out 10 of the 27 batters to face him.

Next week will see Heppner playing Condon on the Blue Devils' home field.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Turner and Mrs. Floyd Adams were in Portland over the weekend.

Hermiston Sale Prices Stay Steady

HERMISTON—Mike Monahan of Heppner topped the market at the Hermiston livestock auction Friday with a 325 lb. sow selling for 25c per lb. Delbert Anson, manager of the sale, reports, Richard Williamson, Heppner, consigned a 680 lb. whiteface steer that sold for a top of $21.00 cwt. John Hanna, also of Heppner, topped the market with a 1305 lb. whiteface bull selling for $15.20. L. A. and Kenneth Palmer Lexington, provided largest individual consignment, 76 head of cattle.

Increased farming activities and irrigation work cut consignments of cattle. Consigned were 315 cattle compared with 459 the previous Friday. 133 hogs compared with 89, and 20 sheep compared with 80.

The market was brisk with demand broad and active. Packers buyers, including one new packer from Salem, feeder buyers buying large number of cattle and farmers buying stocker and feeder cattle were active.

Prices were generally steady despite lower quality in stock cows, cows with calves at side and steer calves. Canner-cutter and utility slaughter cows were one dollar lower. Poorer quality fat hogs which were too light, overly fat or overweight were slightly lower in price.

Particularly in demand at the sale Friday are yearling steers for feed lot and grass feeding, and fat lambs.

Penicillin Cures Animal Foot Rot, OSC Studies Show

Foot rot in cattle and sheep can usually be cured in less than a week with one penicillin injection given during the first two or three days of lameness, according to Dr. J. O. Schnautz, Oregon State college veterinarian. In tests on the college herd, Dr. Schnautz cleared up average cases in three to seven days with 300,000 units of penicillin per 100 pounds of body weight.

Foot rot infection is caused by bacteria that thrive in mud and filth and is likely to spread from infected animals to healthy ones. It may extend through the summer and into the fall, especially when animals are on irrigated pasture or swampy ground. Wet paths, lanes and mud around watering troughs help spread the disease. The veterinarian says that while spring is the least troublesome season, it is a good time to clean up carry-over cases before they have a chance to spread.

Dr. Schnautz says immediate treatment will pay off since the disease is sometimes so severe that one claw of the foot must be amputated. Foot rot usually follows a break in the hoof from rough stones, wire, nails or other objects that permits entry of the bacteria.

Symptoms of foot rot include swelling with considerable inflammation of the foot. The infected foot usually feels warm and gives off a foul odor.

The veterinarian says bluestone (copper sulfate) mixed three parts to seven parts of water by weight is a cheap treatment if many animals are infected. Stand each animal in the solution for five minutes with the solution covering the hoof and hairline. Repeat every other day until the symptoms disappear.

Dr. Schnautz advises farmers to clean the hoofs of lame animals and inspect them carefully for wounds or objects such as nails, wire or stones. If no apparent causes of lameness are to be found, treat for foot rot, as follows:

Many Car Accidents Caused by Wrong Turning Movements

Turning movements and rear-end collisions accounted for nearly half of all Oregon accidents involving two or more cars last year, Secretary of State Earl T. Newbry reported today.

Newbry said final compilation of the state's 1953 traffic accident record shows 27,000 accidents of these two types amounting to 40 percent of all vehicle collisions reported during the year.

Turning movement collisions usually are traceable to failure to stop at stop signs, failure to yield right-of-way and turning from the wrong lane, accident analysis shows. Rear-end collisions almost always stem from following too closely.

These violations, in turn, are due to the carelessness or poor driving habits of the drivers involved, Newbry contended.

The return of spring weather and increasing traffic volumes make driving more than ever a full-time job, the secretary cautioned.
