

Many Attend Training Meeting For Scout Leaders

By Delpha Jones

Last weekend the Covered Wagon District of the Blue Mountain Council of Boy Scouts held a leaders' overnight training conference at the O. W. Cutsforth cabin in the mountains 20 miles above Heppner. The program was most instructive and interesting and was as follows: 1 p. m. it opened. Patrol and troop organization and leadership—R. Leadership—the Patrol method and techniques of organization—R. H. Lamott.

Patrol and troop hiking planning and preparing for, plus the adventure of hiking, Ed Martin.

Patrol and troop camping camp cookery, planning and preparing for camping camp program—R. H. Lamott.

The heart of scouting, A fundamentals of scouting, scouting theory, history, advancement—R. H. Lamott; Z—Helping the boy to grow, the scout oath and law in practice—Rev. Soward.

Morning worship Rev. L. Boulden (A non-denominational church service).

Patrol and troop program planning, Brad Fancher. Planning for all purposes, planning aids.

Patrol and troop meetings—

Glenn Tolman. How to conduct meetings, the purposes and ingredients of meetings.

The successful leadership of boys in the Boy Scout movement requires skill and knowledge. It requires an understanding of the objective of scouting the methods by which this is obtained, a knowledge of program ideas, and where to find it, and it requires an understanding of how to work with others related to the movement. To furnish this information a program of training is provided and thousands of leaders have found these training opportunities helpful. Training in leadership techniques, knowledge of basic skills, and understanding boyology, are pre requisites to the successful leadership of the modern boy or young man. Those attending this meeting were: Carl Marquardt, Scout master, Lexington; Cecil Jones, institutional rep. Lexington; Robert Despain, neighborhood comm., Ione; Adan Hamlett, asst. Scout master, Ione; B. D. Fancher, district commissioner, Heppner; James Angel, troop committee chrm., Fossil; Robert Abrams, Scout master, Fossil; Ed Marin, neighborhood comm. Hermiston; Clarence Bartlett, troop committee chrm. Hermiston and Elmer Blough, Scout master, Hermiston and Glenn Tolman, Rev. L. Boulden and Rev. Soward of Heppner.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Ruhl were Thanksgiving guests at the home of her parents in Stanfield. At this time they all were delighted to receive a call from Robert Grey, brother of Mrs. Ruhl who is stationed in Japan.

Mr. and Mrs. Newt O'Hara were dinner guests on Thanksgiving at the Ray Darnielle home in The Dalles. Their son Jack and family also were present at the dinner from their home in Portland.

Vernon Warner was a guest of his parents last week, and Mrs. Earl Warner, his mother returned to Portland with him and after spending a few days visit there she went to Corvallis where she visited her daughter and family. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hayes, They all returned to Portland where they were met by Earl Warner and enjoyed their dinner at the Vernon Warner home.

Mrs. Emma Breshears visited last week with her daughter in The Dalles. Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Richelder and in Corvallis with the Everett Crump family. H. I. Cornelson visited his family from Dufur where he is employed.

Jerry Messenger who has been attending school in Mitchell has registered in the local high school and will live with his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Marquardt.

Sharon Cutsforth of Ione spent the weekend with her father, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Cutsforth.

Mr. and Mrs. George Irvin spent Thanksgiving at the Bert Darnielle home in Hood River.

Pat Cutsforth and Kenneth Cutsforth spent the holidays with their father and family O. W. Cutsforth and their mother Alta Cutsforth in Heppner. They are attending school in Klamath Falls.

NEWS OF THE lone Schools

Chester L. Ward, Superintendent High school honor roll students for the first nine months are:

freshmen, Grace McCabe, Anne Belle Coleman and Mardine Baker; sophomores Peggy Allen, Judy Howton, Julie Rietmann; juniors, Anna Jepsen, Ernie Drake and Jean Ann Swanson; seniors, Dorothy Dobyns, Denny Swanson, Lawrence Jones and Malcolm McKinney. Honorable mention, freshmen, Berl Akers and Kay Sherer; sophomores, Sue Coleman, Loy Keene and Billy Salter; juniors, Gary Brenner; seniors Dick Sherer and Larry Rietmann. We are happy to see the definite tendency toward more emphasis for higher academic standing. The students are really working to make the honor roll and the honorable mention roll. This means much in their grade and transcript when transferred. It is the academic record that brings the carry over value.

The school wishes to thank all the people who helped to make the box supper given by the juniors and the food sale by the freshmen such a success. The events were both very profitable.

It was very gratifying indeed to see the number from the Ione community follow the band to Arlington Nov. 23 to the band clinic. Many fine comments were given the Ione school band.

All students and teachers returned after the Thanksgiving vacation and all reported a fine time. This is a nice break in their work. Most of the teachers visited relatives during the vacation.

Mrs. Koegernick went to her home in Boise, Idaho; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Miller went with her parents to California; Mrs. Faris attended a remedial reading meeting in Washington and went to her home in Wenatchee; Mr. and Mrs. Hurst and son, Kenny, went to Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Ely visited relatives in Forest Grove and Superintendent and Mrs. Ward visited relatives and attended to business in Portland.

The basketball season will open with a Jamboree at Boardman Dec. 1. The first game will be at Condon Dec. 4; one in Heppner Dec. 10 and in Arlington Dec. 11. We expect the usual good following at these games. The County Education association will meet in Heppner Dec. 6. Representatives from colleges will meet with the seniors here Dec. 9. Seniors from Lexington will also meet with them.

The Christmas community tree and program will be held Dec. 23 in the old gym at 7:30 p. m.

Standard helps bring in the "big ones" from Pacific Northwest and Alaskan waters

Since 1905, when we fueled the first gasoline-powered boat, at Seattle, Standard has planned ahead for Pacific Northwest and Alaskan fishermen's changing needs. We pioneered cold-weather starting fluid . . . developed fuels to extend cruising range, boost speed and power . . . lubricants for canned and frozen fish processing machines. Standard tankers range your shores to supply the fishing fleets, keep canneries humming. Today, Standard Marine Stations serve fishermen and pleasure craft owners along coastal and inland waterways alike.

. . . and we're still pioneering products to help cut your motor costs. A recent result of Standard's automotive research is "RPM 10-30 Special" . . . the motor oil that can save up to 3/4 gallon of gas in every 5 . . . in all climates . . . all cars . . . all seasons. It's a change for the better when you change to RPM 10-30 Special Motor Oil—at Standard and Chevron Stations.

Working with you in Washington, Alaska, Oregon, Idaho

- 3,039 Standard employees
- $14,959,055 annual payroll
- 4,840 Pacific Northwest and Alaska shareholders
- $91,038,236 investment in plant, refinery and distribution facilities
- $5,208,000 worth of goods and services bought from more than 1,150 Pacific Northwest and Alaska businesses in 1953
