Make It Yourself

Here's a make-it-yourself project easy enough for an amateur carpenter with only a few simple tools, yet satisfying enough for an accomplished craftsman.

It is a handy knick-knack shelf as modern as today but able through its simple lines to fit in with many types of home decoration.

The secret of making it is to cut a slot halfway through the width of each board wherever two boards join. The slots should be only as wide as the boards are thick.

For easy-working woods that will take just about any kind of finish, use a clear western pine—Idaho white pine, ponderosa pine, or sugar pine—or a good choice among the associated woods from the western pine forests would be Engelmann spruce.
